PRESIDENT HARDING

PRESIDENT'S CONDITION GRAVE

San Francisco, July 30.—Physicians called today for a consultation on the condition of President Harding, who is ill here, conferred for two hours. Among those called in were a noted heart specialist and a noted stomach specialist. When the conference was concluded the consulting doctors declined to issue any statement, or make any comment. The physicians promised to issue a statement later in the day.

Physicians were awaiting development of what had been described in a bulletin issued by Brigadier-General Sawyer as "new symptoms indicating complications."

Participating in the consultation, which lasted about an hour and was held at the hotel where the President was taken upon his arrival in San Francisco early yesterday, were:

General Sawyer, Dr. Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, and a former president of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University and the president of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Charles M. Cooper, of San Francisco, a heart specialist.

It is understood that the President, weakened by suffering from ptomaine poisoning, has developed complications of heart and intestinal trouble. His condition is causing the gravest concern.

Dr. Work said at 7:30 Pacific time that President Harding had "rested very poorly last night."

Harding's Condition So Serious His Trip Has Been Called Off

How serious is his illness his physicians have not said beyond the statement saying that "new symptoms" had arisen during the day indicating complications in the case of the President. But it was regarded sufficiently serious to cause a cancellation of the Chief Executive's entire program and to bring about a consultation into which two leading California physicians were called.

Four physicians participating in the consultation concluded their meeting early today without issuing any statement.

Although Brigadier-General Charles E. Sawyer, personal physician to the President, previously had announced that a bulletin would be made public,

The reports are telephoned to the broadcasting station just as they come over the wire from San Francisco. They will be sent out by radio hourly at fifteen minutes of the hour. Tune to 278 meters.

CORCORAN EAGER FOR HIS TRIAL

"They've Got Nothing on Me," Declares Ex-Attorney Facing Blackmail Cases

By CHARLES O. POWER

New York, July 30.—"Bill" Corcoran says he wants to get back to Boston to face the music as soon as possible.

The once distinguished looking District-Attorney of Meddlesex County, Massacushetts, now a guest of Warden John Hanley of the Tombs, declares that he has nothtortion, blackmail and related crimes. ing to fear from a trial on twenty-seven indictments of alleged extortion, blackmail and related crime.

Police Inspector John F. Mitchell left Boston for Albany today to be present when Governor Smith reviews extradition papers requesting the surrender of Corcoran to Boston authorities. Assistant Attorney General Hurwitz will be in Albany to resist any move on the part of Corcoran's friends to fight extradition.

2 DRUG STORE SAFES CRACKED FOR $3,350

Two Liggett drug stores were burglarized over the week end, safes cracked and cash amounting to $3350 stolen.

The breaks were not discovered until today. Police investigating branded both jobs the wor kof amateurs, finding tools such as no professional would use, they assert.

Both hop are on prominent Boston street intersections. They are at Washington and Hanover streets and Massachusett and Huntington avenue. Entrance was gained at both stores via skylights. At the Washington-Hanover store $1850 in cash from the safe and a quntity of fountain pens and cameras were stolen.

At the Massachusetts-Huntington avenues store the afe was rolled on its side, the knobs chiselled off and $1500 in cash taken.

The money represented aturday receipts.

CHEMISTS SHOW 'REAL BEER' WAS LESS THAN 1 PERCENT

The word was passed all over town that "real beer" could be bought for 50 cents a bottle at Jordan & Bagley lunch bar, No. 70 Cornhill street, so the plain clothes policemen went in and bought a bottle.

Then they went to Lavine's on Merchants' Row and seized a barrel of "real beer," which had been selling for ten cents a glass.

Today the State chemist's report disclosed the alcholic content of each seizure to be .89 per cent.

BANDITS KILL 1, WOUND 4; GET $85,000 IN TRAIN

Pittston, Pa., July 30 (I.N.S.).—One man is dead and four seriously injured as the result of a daring daylight holdup of the southbound Laurel line train, which occurred south of Mesaic station, today, when seven masked bandits held up members of the crew and passengers, and made away with $85,000, the payroll of the West End Coal Company.

THREE DISCOVERED DEAD IN ONE DAY IN BOSTON

Worried because her husband, Paul, failed to return home all night, Mrs. Elizabeth Alenka today went from her home, No. 8 City Point court, South Boston, to No. 10, to seek the aid of a neighbor.

There, just inside the hall door, she found his body stretched full length. Bruises on the back of his head lead the police to think he fell backward while mounting the stairs to the second floor.

Failing to hear any sound from the second floor suite at No. 22 Dover street, a woman living in the building pushed open the door of Michael Dowd's kitchen.

Sitting in a chair was Miss Jane McDuffee, fifty-five, the housekeeper. Associate Medical Examiner Waters believes death was due to natural causes. She had been ailing.

When Janitor Arthur Doody started sweeping up the Somerset Club, No. 324 Medford street, Charlestown, today, he discovered the body of Thomas Carr, sixty-two, of No. 10 Salem street, North End, on a couch. Death is thought due to organic heart trouble.

Harvard Man With Chum Disappear in Maine Fog; $500 Reward Offered

Lewiston, Me., July 30.—A dispatch from Wayne says Alfred T. Merian, a Harvard College junior, son of Alfred Merian of New York, and Gaston Dallendsch, of Switzerland, who was to enter Columbia in the Fall, are lost on Mt. Katahdin, in Northern Maine. Mr. Merian, young Merian's father, and Dr. Thaddeus Hyatt, of New York, are aiding in the search.

With three other young men Merianand Dallendech left to climb the mountain. The last seen of them by companions was when they were about a third the way up. There was a heavy fog.

A reward of $500 is offered by Mr. Merian. Game wardens and forest fire wardens have been instructed by Gov. Baxter to seek the boys.

MAXWELL, PLOT VICTIM, DECLARES WIFE OF RYAN

Portland, Me., July 30—Supposed to be in Paris with five of her children, crying out against the linking of her name with that of George Maxwell, "love octopus," in recent "poison pen" allegations, Mrs. Allan A. Ryan was fund today by the Boston American at Sebago Lake, fifteen miles from this city.

She is occupying a cottage with four of her children.

Mrs. Ryan returned to America by way of Montreal. She went to New York where her husband met her. She went to her apartment on Thirty-seventh street. Mr. Ryan was living at his son's apartment on Thirty-eighth street. A few days ago Mrs. Ryan came to Sebago Lake.

Mrs. Ryan does not believe Maxwell was the author of the "poison [illegible]" letters linking her name with his. She believes instead, that Maxwell is a victim of the spite of unidentified evildoers, just as he contends.

As for Mr. Ryan's part in the affair, Mrs. Ryan thinks he acted hastily in bringing about an investigation and the consequent publicity.

Mrs. Ryan's statement defending Maxwell adds one more name to the list of women who have come to his support since indictments, naming him as the author of the letters, were made known.

Mrs. Ryan's attitude toward her husband, who is in the Adirondacks with their eldest son, Allan A. Jr., is not so plain.

"The anonymous letter about him came just a few months before I met Mr. Maxwell," she said. "I didn't

HARDING TO BE RUSHED TO CAPITAL

San Francisco, July 30 (A.P.).—President Harding will be rushed back to Washington by special train as soon as he recovers from his present illness sufficiently to travel, probably within tow weeks.

CHARGES MORSES GRABBED $361,000

Washington, July 30.—District Attorney Peyton Gordon, beginning the government's argument today in the case of Charles W. Morse and others charged with conspiracy in connection with wartime shipbuilding operations, asserted that each of the 30 overt acts alleged in dictments had been proved. Mr. Gordon said on the first contract the Emergency Fleet Corporation paid $361,000, of which the Morses converted more than $300,000 to their own use instead of applying it to the building of ships.

MAN HUNT BY 30,000 TAXI CAB DRIVERS

New York, July 30. (I.N.S.)—One of the greatest man hunts in New York police annals got under way today when 30,000 taxicab drivers offered their services to detectives seeking the slayer of Patrolmen Charles Reynolds and Frank Romanello, shot down by the unidentified companion of a screaming woman.

The murderer was the occupant of a taxi-cab, in which it is believed he was attempting to assault his companion, when her cries brought Reynolds and Romanello to her aid. The officers had placed the man and woman and the driver of the cab under arest, when the man whipped out a revolver and shot both officers. He escaped.

20 PARTIALLY DRESSED FLEE FIRE IN SALEM ST., NO. END

Twenty persons were driven into the street, only partially dressed, early today, when fire was discovered in the basement of a dwelling house at No. 20 Salem street, North End.

A passerby ran through hallways yelling "Fire" and the exodus followed.

The blaze was kept confined to the cellar. Loss was $300. Cause is undetermined.

U. S. RUM SHIP PLAN SECRET, ASSERTS PREMIER BALDWIN

London, July 30 (AP).—In the House of Commons today Captain Wedgwood Ben, Liberal member for Leith, asked if Prime Minister Baldwin could publish the terms of the proposals made by the United States relative to the right of search (for rum runners) beyond the three-mile limit.

"I regret to say," replied the Premier, "that the United States government has objected to the publication of their proposals at present."

DOGS ORDERED MUZZLED; 274 PERSONS IN HUB BITTEN

Health Commissioner Francis X. Mohoney today issued an order compelling owners of dogs to either leash or muzzle their dogs from today on for a period of ninety days.

Any dogs found running around unleashed or unmuzzled will be taken by the police to the Animal Rescue League and killed. Strict police enforcement of this order has been asked by the Commissioner.

Since Jan. 1, 274 persons, mostly children, have been bitten by dogs in Boston, and in 19 of the cases rabies developed.

PRESIDENT HARDING'S ILLNESS CAUSES CANCELLATION OF TRIP

SPECIALISTS ARE CALLED IN CONSULTATION; EXECUTIVE IN WEAK CONDITION

none of the four physicians would make a personal statement.

The calling in of Dr. Cooper, a heart specialist, together with other developments, indicated that the effect of possible complications on the President's heart action was being watched carefully.

The decision to call off the California program and to hold in abeyance arrangements for the return to the Atlantic Coast by way of the Panama Canal was reached shortly before eleven o'clock at a conference in which Mrs. Harding, Secretary Work, General Sawyer and Secretary Christian participated.

Secretary Christian soon after made the announcement of a change of plans saying that the President had approved it because he "realizes the great inconvenience imposed on public authorities, volunteer committees and the people in general by reason of uncertainty whether the program in which he was to have participated can be carried out."

An informal statement made in connection with the formal announcement of the cancellation conveyed the information that Mr. Harding would remain in San Francisco until he completely recovered. This was regarded by some acquainted with the Executive's condition as likely to require ten days or two weeks.

No plans for the return trip to Washington, either by the planned water route through the Panama Canal and by way of Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands or by train overland, will be made until the President recovers, it was emphasized.

Some members of the Presidential party today expressed the belief that the water trip would be abandoned and that Mr. Harding would return by train without any steps for speeches or receptions.

What General Sawyer described as a "violent attack of ptomaine poisoning" experienced by the President is attributed to copper poisoning in crab meat consumed by the Presidential party aboard the U. S. S. Henderson.

The giant Alaskan crabs were taken aboard at Cordova. They were the gifts of the agricultural experiment station there. Alaska's rule that crabs should be only eaten, as are oysters on the Atlantic Coast, in months whose names include the letter "R" was disregarded.

San Francisco, July 30 (U.S.)—From President Harding's room a statement was issued cancelling the balance of his trip. He will return by train to Washington as soon as his health permits.

The President's decision was made after a conference with his physician, General Sawyer, and other members of the Presidential party, at which his condition, due to the recent attack of ptomaine poisoning, from which he has been suffering, was discussed.

The statement said:

"The President is deeply appreciative of the fact that the people of California and its great cities have planned a series of magnificent demonstrations in honor of his visit."

"He realized the great invonvenience imposed on public authorities, volunteer committees and the people in general by reason of uncertainty whether the program in which he was to have participated can be carried out. He has been particularly concerned to avoid the possibility that many thousand would travel long distances and then be disappointed.

"Accordingly, after full consideration of all circumstances, he has desired the statement made public that by advice of his physician he will not attempt to carry out the program arranged for him for San Francisco.

"Moreover, the President is reluctantly persuaded that it will be necessary to cancel the entire California program."

Fatigue of Trip Adds to Harding's Illness

San Francisco, July 30.—The weakened condition of President Harding, according to physicians attending him in his illness here, always follows an attack of ptomaine poisoning.

The purgatives, the abstinence from food, alone are weakening, it was pointed out, and in the President's case these natural results from his illness have been complicated by the already existing fatigue that comes from many days of constant travel by train, motor and boat and the constant crowds that have been Mr. Harding's daily portion for nearly six weeks.

It is to this weakened condition that the physicians attribute his inability to "come back" quickly and throw off the toxic and other poisoning as quickly as they had anticipated.

Hub Doctor Doubts "Copper Poisoning" Made Harding Ill

The serious illness of President Harding was caused by crab meat that had started to decay.

Brigadier-General Sawyer, the President's personal physician, attributes the illness of the President to copper poisoning in crabs eaten by the President on board the U. S. S. Henderson.

Dr Goodall disagrees with General Sawyer on the copper poisoning idea.

"Ptomaine poisoning is caused by bacteria," said Dr. Goodall. "Bacteria appears when meat starts to deteriorate. If this crabmeat poisoned the President it had started to rot and bacteria was present. Otherwise it would not have been ptomaine poison.

"There is nothing to the copper poisoning idea, in my opinion. I have seen oysters containing so much copper that they were green. French oysters of this type are considered great delicacies. The copper in the shell fish will hurt no one.

"As a matter of fact, it is poor policy to eat shell fish in the hot months. Shell fish deteriorate more quickly than any other kind of meat. The heat of the Summer will start decay in shell fish in a short time, and one will not know it in many cases until it is too late.

The rule regarding oysters—not to eat them during the months whose names do not contain the letter "R" is an excellent one. It is not because the oysters are not good in Summer. They are if taken fresh from the water. But it is because it is practically impossible to transport them without deterioration setting in, with the accompanying bacteria that cause ptomaine poisoning.

"The same rule would apply very well to crabs. They are a delicate fish and subject to quick decay in the heat. If they are not transported rapidly and under the proper conditions they will decay very quickly and there is dan[illegible]."

SOX TRAIL EXTRA BOSTON AMERICAN

HARDING IN SHIP CRASH

FRIDAY, JULY 27..

The Boston American scored two important news beats in two successive days concerning President Harding.

The first was on Friday, when the Boston American was the first afternoon paper to print the news that the President had been in a shipwreck off Seattle. Another paper issued a late extra following the American.

Then on Saturday the Boston American was the only Boston afternoon paper to publish the fact that the President was confined to his bed with ptomaine poisoning.

Sunday morning's newspapapers, twelve hours later, were the first to give Boston corroboration of this important news.

The Boston American is the only Boston paper to carry all the big news first because it is the only one which subscribes to the Associated Press, International News Service, Cosmopolitan and Universal Service. These news agencies are augmented by a corps of highly trained special correspondents in world centres.

"GOT NOTHING ON ME," SAYS CORCORAN

come for you before Tuesday," I said to Corcoran at our last social session. We have had several visits in the last few days.

LEVENSON CALLS

"I'm sorry about that," he said, "As I was figuring on going back on Monday. I hope there will be no undue hitch or delay over the requisition papers, as I am anxious to have the whole thing over with as soon as possible."

Our last interview was cut short by the arrival of Harry E. Levenson and Bernard Coper of Boston. The former is the Boston lawyer who is more or less mixed up with the affairs of Corcoran and the so-called blackmail ring, and is now enjoying liberty through an appeal for a stay of sentence.

He signed the Tombs book as an attorney and vouched for Coper as being an office associate. He gave his place of business as No. 43 Tremont street. Corcoran seemed glad to see them and asked me to excuse him as soon as they were announced.

Just a few words about Corcoran's personal appearance. It is in striking contrast to that which made him a conspicuous figure in the heyday of his career when he was a district-attorney eight or nine years and immediately following when he was much in evidence in prominent Boston hotels.

NO LONGER A DANDY

Then his gray-tinged hair was always slickly brushed. Now his hair is white and tousled. Then he wore frock-coat suits and sacks that fitted him to perfection. Now he has a doubled-breasted blue serge that is rumpled, not too new, and too big for him.

In the "good old days," when Bill's favorite drink was "the bubbles," he was a swell dresser. Now in the days of his total abstinence, he is not so particular. He says he has been on the wagon for two years, that be has not taken a drink in all that time.

Corcoran refuses absolutely to discuss his famous confession to former Attorney-General J. Weston Allen. He will not even admit that it was a confession involving himself. It would "not be fair to certain people" to say anything about what he told Mr. Allen, he insists.

DENIES GUILT

He refuses positively to make anything like a new confession or explanation now.

"If you won't tell me what you told Attorney General Allen, why not tell me all about your connection with the cases which are features of the blackmailing scandal?" I asked him.

"Why should I?" he shot back indignantly.

"Why should I confess to anything?" I am innocent and no conviction can be secured of me. These people who are pushing this thing cannot put anything over on me, I tell you."

"I tell you they have nothing on me. They cannot pin anything on me. They cannot convict me of any offense. They cannot do it on the testimony of discredited women. They have a lot of indictments against me, to be sure, but that looks more formidable than it really is. I understand there are about four cases they are banking on—the Curtis case, the Donovan case, the case of some fellow by the name of Cohen and another one the name of which has gone from me."

"You see, it is this way," he explained, "I have been glad to see you because the many years I have known you I have considered you a white man and I would like to give you the story you wana. But I cannot do it for various reasons, the principal one being that there is not such a story anyway. It has been said that I talk too much and I have made up my mind not to do so in this instance. As a matter of fact, I have not decided just how I am going to handle this matter.

"You know that I was a pretty good lawyer, don't you? But you also know what they say about the lawyer who has himself for a client. Of course, I shall have counsel, but I have not seeeled that matter yet.

The last time I talked with Corcoran, Marcus Garvey, president of the proposed African Republic, who is now in the toils of the law for his peculiar methods in attempting to float the Black Star Steamship Company, shared the room with us.

He was anxious to have me meet Garvey. "He's a great chap," remarked Bill, "and a very clever one, too. I suppose you know he s the guy who gypped a lot of the colored brethren on that African republic scheme. He is an interesting and convincing colored gentleman, I have discovered in my talks with him.

INTRODUCES GARVEY

"Say, Mr. President, I want you to meet one of the writers for the Hearst newspapers who has come here to interview me," announced Corcoran, as he tapped the little man who sat before a long table in a sprawling attitude poring over a pile of papers and things.

He was honored, and all that sort of thing, Garvey lisped, to meet the so distinguished newspaper man. I thought I detected a chuckle from Corcoran. There is a constant stream of brothers and sisters of the republic calling on Garvey, so our conversation was very short.

Corcoran says the stories that he fled to Mexico soon after he was released on bail, or that he went to South America, are all bunk. He insists that he has not stepped a foot outside the limits of this country, and that most of the time he has been right here in New York.

He has kept in constant touch with his brother Leo, he says, and anybody could have learned of his whereabouts through Leo at any time. He repeats that there has been no secrecy about his movements and no reason for any. He can ascribe no reason why the police could not apprehend him any time they desired. Of course, that does not quite jibe with the view of the police and other Massachusetts officers of the law.

TURNED BANKER

Now that they have him beyond cavil and he is going back without question, he is anxious only that the law officers make a complete job of it and clean up every case they want him for. He wants the whole business over with and settled for all time.

"What have you been doing, Bill, most of the time, since you have been away?" I asked him.

"Why, I have been doing business and making money. Business has been pretty good," he said.

"Bootlegging?" I ventured.

"Not on your life, banking," he corrected.

"Banking what and how?" I wanted to know.

"Well, it would not be just fair to drag the name of the concern into this mess, now would it?" he chided me, and I let it go at that.

AMERICAN'S PROPERTY SEIZED IN SIBERIA

Nome, Alaska, July 30 (P).—Reports of cruelty by Red troops and civil authorities in Siberia were brought here today when the schooner Silver Wave, Captain Jack Hammer, commanding, arrived, after being held by the Soviet government since last Fall. The vessel was under charter to the Olaf Swenson Company of Seattle.

All property in Siberia belonging to Swenson is being confiscated, according to Captain Hammer, because a colonel in the White army who was executed by the Russians last Winter had in his pockets a check for $500,000 from Swenson.

WIFE DECLARES RIVAL STOLE HER HUSBAND

Dover, N. H., July 30.—Police are searching for Svend H. Pederson and Mary Carpenter, alleged elopers. Peterson's wife, Maud, and their two-year-old baby, Edward, are here. According to the police, Mrs. Carpenter deserted her husband and five-year-old daughter at Berwick, Me.

"This woman has been keeping company with my husband for a long time, without my knowledge," Mrs. Pedersen declared. "They worked together in the Brown-Beckwith Bakery here, I learned, and Mrs. Carpenter has even told several people who worked in the bakery that she was going to run away with my husband. He is 24 years old.

"I have asked the district attorney of Dover to stop my husband, who, I understand, left here with his little red roadster. I will not rest until they are caught.

"Friends of mine told me that they heard my husband and Mrs. Carpenter have gone to Texas, stopping off in Michigan first."

GIRL HELD AFTER $10,000 THEFT BY 'SERVANTS'

Mrs. Elna Spicer, nee Proctor, and also known as Byrnes, twenty-three years old, attractive Bath, Me., divorcee, and alleged accomplice in a $10,000 robbery at the home of Henry B. Whitman, wealthy mill man and wool merchant, of No. 17 Exeter street, was arrested in Philadelphia, and brought to Boston on an indictment warrant to face charges of the robbery.

Thomas Byrnes of New York, Mrs. Spicer's alleged accomplice, is sought in connection with the Boston robbery, and the robbery of $20,000 in jewelry and clothing from Franklin Smith, millionaire iron man of Chicago.

The Boston robbery took place on May 16, last. A "Mr. and Mrs. Byrnes" had been employed by Mrs. Whitman as domestics, six days before the robbery. References, signed by one Herman of New York, are declared bogus.

Police declare the couple took advantage of the deafness of Mr. Whitman's aged mother to strip the house of valuables, and make their getaway in a taxicab

SHIPWRECKED CREW IS RESCUED AT SEA

Kingston, Ont., July 30 (I.N.S.)—After drifting two nights and a day in a small life boat nine of the crew of the steamer W. J. Carter, including one woman, were rescued today by the steamer Keyport. The Carter foundered twenty miles south of Long Point in 150 fathoms. All of the crew escaped in the small life boat.

THREATEN MONARCY IN GREECE

Reports of Revolution Laid Before British Parliament by Government Minister

London, July 30 (A.P.)—Reports have reached the British government of an attempt to set up a republic in Greece in place of the monarchy, Ronald MacNeill, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons this afternoon.

Mr. MacNeill's statement was in reply to a statement from Commander Kenworthy, independent Liberal member for Hull, who asked also for information as to what part former Premier Venizelos, General Pangalos, former Greek army commander-in-chief and Admiral Hadjikiriakos were playing in the Republican movement.

BRITAIN NEUTRAL.

The under secretary said he was unable to say what was the attitude of the individual Greek statesmen or to give any authoritative information regarding events.

The British government is exercising no pressure, one way or another, on the affairs of Greece, Mr. MacNeil informed the House.

Rumors of disturbed conditions in Greece have been current for several days past. On July 26 the Belgrade newspapers said news had been received describing the situation in Greece as grave. It was said the Republican movement was gaining headway in the army; also that a ministerial crisis was imminent owing to a split in the Venizelist party.

Special dispatches from other sources carried reports that a coup d'etat was impending and that the movement was taking an anti-dynastic turn.

MINISTERS EXECUTED.

It was only last Fall, following the Greek military debacle in Asia Minor, that a revolutionary movement broke out, promoted largely by the pro-Venizelist element in the army, which overthrew the ministerial government and set up what was virtually a military dictatorship. Several members of the former Greek cabinet, including Premier Gounaris, were tried by courtmartial and executed.

The revolutionists forced the abdication of King Constantine, who was exiled from Greece, but they retained the dynasty, placing Crown Prince George on the throne. Ex-King Constantine died in exile at Palermo last January.

COL. CARROLL TO WED MISS NINA RYAN

Colonel Carroll.

New York, July 30.—Colonel Acosta Carroll of New York soon will marry Miss Nina Ryan of this city. Colonel Carroll is a prominent lawyer. His father was John E. Carroll, former Governor of Maryland.

Miss Ryan is the daughter of John B. Ryan and a granddaughter of Thomas Fortune Ryan. Colonel Carroll, who last May acquired the ancestral home of the Carrolls in Howard county, Maryland, has made his home in this city for years. Soon after acquiring the manor he entertained about 1,600 persons at a horse show there. He is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1902.

Bucket Drops on Man

An iron bucket attached to a crane at an excavation on George street, Charlestown, dropped today on Daniel O'Nell, forty-five, of No. 52 Harvard street, Charlestown. His right leg was fractured and he was cut across his back.

ENJOYING HOOD'S "SWEETHEARTS" ON AMERICAN OUTING

Some of happy children eating the free delicacies provided by H. P. Hood & Sons on the last outing given by the Boston American to 6,000 women and children at Nantasket Beach. Safe to say none of the many generous donations came closer to the hearts of the kiddies than H. P. Hood & Sons famous old-fashioned ice cream, popularly known as "Sweethearts." The above group, industriously engaged in eating the delicacy, was one of hundreds grouped about Nantasket Beach at the latest Boston American mothers and children beach trips.

4 BOATS TO TAKE 6,000 TO BEACH FOR OUTING

SPECIAL WEATHER ANNOUNCEMENT FOR OUTINGS

If it is raining Tuesday the Boston American Nantasket Trips will be postponed until Friday of this week, the four boats leaving on the latter date on the same hours, as advertised.

The Trips will NOT be postponed on account of light Summer showers. All persons MUST arrange to catch boats at the hours printed on tickets.

The last and biggest fleet of "Boston American Steamships" sails away for Nantasket tomorrow with the greatest passenger list of the year.

Just 6,000 happy mothers and children will be aboard, and if the typical "American" weather holds as it has in previous trips the 1923 excursions will close in a blaze of glory.

In spite of our most earnest efforts to get the tickets to all who wished to travel on these excursions, we are well aware that many hundreds found it impossible to obtain tickets. Everything that could be done from this office to get a fair and square distribution was DONE.

Our stories in The American had made the situation very clear. There were only 6,000 tickets we could not distribute more tickets than there was accommodation on the four steamships.

The Boston American takes this occasion to thank the big-hearted organizations and business houses who freely gave their time and products to make the 1923 Nantasket Trips the very best of any year. When boats were added, making their contributions jump 1500 individual gifts with each boat, they met the situation in splendid spirit.

To the Red Cross nurses, the weather man, the Nantasket Steamboat Company, H. P. Hood & [illegible] The Berwick Cake Co., the Polar Products Co., the Moxie Company, Paragon Park and the Sagamore Bath Houses, we are sincerely grateful. Just a line for the officers and crews of the Nantasket steamers. Every situation that arose, every question that an inquisitive youngster could invent, every one of the unusual responsibilities that were placed upon these men were met with perfect patience, unfailing good nature and a smile.

All of the four [illegible]tiful steamships will sail on sch[illegible] follows:

Boats leave Rowe[illegible] at 8:30 A. M., 9:00 A. M., 9:30 A. M., 11:00 [illegible] M.

Returning, leave Nantasket at [illegible] P. M., 3:30 P. M., 4:15 P. M., [illegible] P. M.

Moslem Dons Robes and Prays Before Facing Camera

New York, July 30.—Before Moulay Hassan Sarsar, a Mohemmedan sheriff of Marakech, Mororro, who arrived on the Lafayette today, would permit photographers to take his picture he prayed for special guidance.

He donned white flowing robes and went through an incantation on a green rug in his stateroom. He said it was not in accord with his religion to be photographed, but decided that when in America he would have to do as Americans do.

RATHER BE BRIDE THAN A SUICIDE

Natick, July 30.—Esther Morse has decided to live.

Esther Morse

The girl who attempted to commit suicide last week after she had caused the arrest of Alfred Machardo of Framingham on a serious charge announced in Natick court before Judge Kennedy that since the last court hearing on the case a week ago she had been married to Machardo.

"I'm through with attempts at suicide," she said.

She refused to testify against the Framingham youth, and Judge Kennedy was forced to dismiss the charges against Machardo.

TAKEN FOR BURGLAR IN HIS OWN HOME

J. C. Haverty

John C. Haverty, No. 27 Fayette street, Cambridge, chairman of the Cambridge Board of Assessors, was threatened with arrest in his home when policemen mistook him for a burglar. Haverty had moved to his Summer home at Nantasket, after asking the police to keep guard on his town house. He returned home unexpectedly and did not notify the police. Patrolman Carroll saw lights in the Haverty home. He summoned Patrolmen Collins and Caithane. The trio advanced on the house with drawn revolvers. Haverty looked out of an upstairs window to find himself "covered" with a revolver. Explanations cleared up the matter.

FOUR GIRLS AND MAN KILLED IN JOY RIDE

New York, July 30.—William I. Gottlieb, wealthy clothing merchant, whose wife was on a vacation in the country, and four women companions on a gay automobile party, were killed by a Long Island train that demolished Gottlieb's car.

The dead:

William Gottlieb, 50, dress manufacturer of New York; Miss Mae E. Lewis, 28, stenographer, formerly of Charlestown, W. Va.; Mrs. Gladys Miller, 20 an actress, of Brooklyn; Miss Thelma Keogh, 18 an actress of Brooklyn, sister of Mrs. Miller and Verna Tolley, 27, New York newspaper writer.

The automobile and the train were said to have been speeding through the rain at about sixty miles an hour when the crash occurred. One woman was impaled on top of the locomotive and part of the mangled bodies of the other victims, together with wreckage of the car, were strewn along the track for 400 yards.

The bodies were practically stripped of clothing, and bits of bathing suits found along the tracks indicated the party was returning from the seashore.

ALIENS REPORTED HOLDING LYNN JOBS

Mayor McPhetres

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Lynn City Council, Mayor Harland A. McPhetres will be requested to investigate all city appointments to see if any aliens are holding office. Councillor Fred J. Hamelin repeats charges that certain Lynn office-holders are not citizens of the United States. The council is determined that only American citizens hold city office.

LINER ORDERED HERE WITH IMMIGRANTS

New York, July 30.—In on effort to relieve immigration congestion at Ellis Island, the International Mercantile Marine Company has diverted two of its ships, due here Wednesday, to other ports, it was learned today. The Finland of the American line was ordered to Boston and the Gothland of the Red Star line to Philadelphia. The ships are bringing 943 passengers.

Real Liquor Washed Ashore Causes Beach Scramble

Long Beach, N. Y., July 0.—More than 200 cases of real liquor were washed ashore and seized by hotel guests in a frantic catch-as-catch-can contest.

It was believed a rum runner threw the consignment overboard at the approach of coast guard cutters, or that cashed liquor rose to the surface and broke its moorings.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN SO. END DOORWAY

John B. McGarrigan, 28 years old, of No. 67 Pleasant street, Gloucester, was found unconscious, a probable victim of drugs, in an apartment house on Washington street near Laconia street, South End, today. He suffered a deep wound on the forehead when he fell on the brick steps of the house. At City Hospital his name was placed on the danger list.

FRAUDULENT STOCKS GET THIRD OF IT

Nation's Crime Bill Reaches Highest Point, With No Sign of Decrease

New York, July 30 (C.N.S.)—The nation's crime bill aggregates $3,000,000,000 a year, the highest point it has ever reached, according to a statement issued today by William B. Joyce, chairman of the Board of Directors of the National Surety Co.

The public is mulcted most through fraudulent stock schemes, the annual loss from this source running up to $1,000,000,000 a year, in the estimation of Seymour L. Cromwell, president of the New York Stock Exchange.

There is no sign these losses are decreasing, although American history shows no period at which crime was so prevalent as now, the statement continued. The figures given out were based on estimates and surveys made by various private and official organizations.

OTHER LOSSES.

Fraudulent bankruptcies caused the public a loss of $400,000,000 yearly, it was stated. Other losses due to various crimes were given as follows:

Burglary, larceny and petty thefts, $250,000,000; embezzlements, $100,000,000; seaport robberies, piracy and customs frauds, $100,000,00; railroad freight thefts and home building frauds, $25,000,000.

The crime loss, Mr. Joyce said, was $500,000,000 larger than the value of the country's total import.

CAUSES OF CRIME.

Widespread disrespect for property rights and law caused partly by the world war.

Envy, resentment and bitterness, partly due to the ostentation of the wealthy classes, and partly to the belief opportunities for wealth are unequally allotted.

Unemployment.

Desire for luxuries beyond earning capacity.

The above heading is really a modest claim, because with our enormous buying and large outlet for groceries we are in position at all times to sell everything in the grocery line at the lowest intelligent prices. It never has been our merchandising system to sell some articles lower than we should, knowing that other articles might stand more than they should.

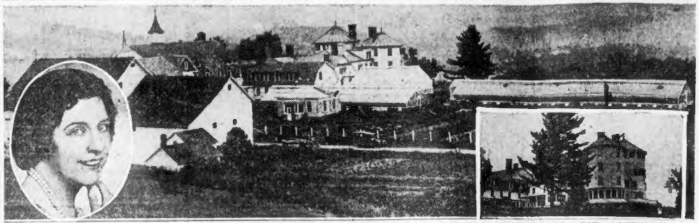
OPERA STARS WILL FLOCK TO MISS FARRAR'S COUNTRY HOME

MME. FARRAR'S VERMONT DOVE COTE



WHERE FAMOUS DIVA WILL ENTERTAIN WEALTHY GUESTS, FOREIGN AND AMERICAN

Bird's eye view of "Manor-Vail," former $5,000,000 home at Lyndonville, Vt., of late Theodore Vail, telephone magnate, transformed into a sumptuous residence for Geralding Farrar, who plans to make the place a rendezvous for foreign nobility as well as plain everyday American millionaires, like John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford. At the right of the picture is the extensive hot house where "Gerry" will raise rare tropical fruits for her guests' delectation. She also plans to root up all the Vermont grass around the estate and in its place plant seeds of Australian Timothy hay, that grade, it is said, having even rarer tickling properties than the famous brand that waves triumphantly o'er Belmont's meadows. At left (inset) is the fair Geraldine from her latest picture. At the right (inset) is a close-up of the famous Towers of Lyndonville.

RADIO FANS HAVE TREAT IN STORE

"Gerry" in Person to Smile a Welcome to the Lucky Ones Bidden There

By GRACE DesCHAMPS.

(Copyright, 1923, by Boston American)

"And this will be the fair Geraline's room. It's going to be done in warm colors—pink or old rose—to agree with her temperament."

Major De Trafford Craven, British war hero and co-partner with the singer in the establishment of the five-million dollar country resort in Vermont for foreign nobility and American millionaires, indicated the spacious boudoir occupied during the estate's former ownership by Mrs. Theodore N. Vail.

A private stairway leads from the beautifully finished suite to one on the lower floor that had been the bedroom of the late Theodore N. Vail.

VIBRANT BACKGROUND.

The Farrar boudoir is now in white. "It would never do—white, you know—for Miss Farrar," the major chuckled. "Can you imagine mere white as a background for Geraldine? No, she must have something warm and vibrant—like herself—about her."

A life-size portrait of the grand opera star will be inlaid above the massive fireplace in the luxurious study of Manor-Vail.

"Gerry's" famous smile will meet each entrant into the most costly study in the world. The princes and princesses and mere millionaires whose family trees have been found sufficiently deep-rooted to afford them the privileges of Manor-Vail, will find the elusive personality of Farrar emanating from each nook and cranny.

"Wherever you touch a wall," said the Major, "you will find imbedded a pipe leading from the great organ. When Geraldine is singing or the organ is being played, the notes can be heard distinctly in each room.

FEAST OF GRAND OPERA.

"There'll be grand opera here all the time. Miss Farrar's artist friends scattered all over Europe and the States have accepted her invitation to visit her here.

"There'll be a concert each night from the lead-lined broadcasting room. You people down in Boston and New York will only have to adjust your head piece to listen in."

Outside Farrar's boudoir is a pitiful-looking wooden piazza—a monument to feminine perversity—and the only thing that is ordinary about Manor-Vail.

Mrs. Vail had it built. When the late Theodore Vail, telephone and copper magnate, constructed his famous mansion, he made a vow: None of his women-folk were to have anything to say concerning the carrying out of his ideas of the ultra au fait in architecture. And they didn't; all the advice and the queer little feminine wishes of his wife went by the board. The finished house was the personification of Vail's personal whims and fancies.

VAIL CAUGHT NAPPING.

But one day Vail took a vacation. He was gone a week. When he returned a really ugly-looking "verandah" protruded from beneath his wife's boudoir. It was of old lumber that lay about the barns.

The old gentleman stopped short. He drew in his chin and peered long at the offensive addition. And the servants say he snorted and tramped into the house without saying a word.

Mrs. Vail was complacent to the point of fatuousness. She had injected something of her own personality into the great building. That something was of soft wood, of rough boards, an unbeautiful contrast, to be sure, to the fine-grained carriage wood of which the exterior of the palatial house is made. But it was no mean triumph.

It will be removed now because it is ugly. And there can be nothing ugly in the atmosphere that surrounds the guests at Manor-Vail.

REMNANTS OF PAST.

is a bit of soft planking here and there throughout the great house. The copper king, who came to Lyndonville broken in health and who lived in a tiny farmhouse on the site of the present buildings, revered the spot. When he decided to build the famous mansion, he first tore down much of the antiquated farmhouse and had the old planking distributed throughout the new household. The door to the old domicile is now enshrined in brick and stone.

All this will be removed.

Even the grass that grows at Lyndonville will be torn up and the land sown with seed imported from Australia. The costly fruits that will appear on the mahogany-inlaid breakfast table are now growing under high-grade supervision in the Vail hot houses. From the ends of the world the seeds have been brought. The Vail idea in landscape gardening will be entirely obliterated.

TO TAME FOLIAGE.

"Vail, you know," laughed Major Craven, "carried out the tropical idea in his gardening. He liked to reach out from a balcony and pick his fruit growing carelessly among tall half-wild foliage. We're going to do away with that."

Still another left-over from the Vail regime that will be abolished is an oak-lined office and time clock in the servants' quarters. There the millionaire settled himself in the morning and observed the hour at which his employes punched their time cards.

"We temperamental folk won't really bother with this," assured Craven. "Time clocks and things aren't terribly necessary, you know. That sort of thing won't be popular here."

BANQUET HONOR GUEST IS SUICIDE

Pisa, Italy, July 30.—While a banquet in honor of Signor Santini, consul-general, of the Fascista militia, was in progress, a young Fascista, Giorgio Bettolo, son of the general and nephew of the admiral of that name, committed suicide by shooting. His act is attributed to neurasthenia, accentuated since he was placed under condemnation for having involuntarily wounded a lieutenant of Carabineers.

Bethlehem, Pa.—Alfred Hettinbach, twelve, and John Bellotta, ten, were drowned today in the Lehigh River here. The boys went swimming and were drawn into a deep hole.

DIVES THROUGH WINDOW WITH 'BABY'S SHOES'

Brother, this baby had the fleetinest pair of dogs in Boston—whippets, they was, boy, whippets!

This dark lad figures it out that baby needs a new pair of shoes, but instead of trying to win a pair by rolling naturals and keeping off of devil's eyes, he goes for a shoe-store in Roxbury, at No. 1299 Washington street, when the Messrs. Proprietors are home abed.

In this shoe store he finds more shoes than Socony is got filling stations. No fooling, he is looking over the tan shoes with pearl buttons when in barts Patrolman Michael Kane of the Roxbury Crossing station, with a flashlight in one hand and a gat in the other, and the gat's bigger than the flashlight and the flashlight is bigger than Babe Ruth's bat.

Mr. Kane he bars the door, but he don't bar the plate glass window, and were that window made of battleship plate it wouldn't make no difference, because that colored boy went through it like it was tissue paper. By the time Kane got to the street the tail but was two blocks away, and he started after him.

The chase lasts a mile, with the colored feller Spark Plugging so fast that he even beat out Mr. Kane's bullets.

After a few minutes he runs so fast he's invisible, and then Mr. Kane returns to the shoe-shop and calls up the owners, and they inventory and find only one pair missing—the pair with the mother of pearl buttons.

Moscow—Following the example of the Ukraine, the Azerbaijan government has made compulsory the revival of the Turkman language in all local and state institutions and official organizations.

London (I.N.S.)—Many striking dock workers returned to work today and the situation is becoming normal.

LONDON, (I.N.S.)—Sir Charles Hawtrey, famous British theatrical producer, died today.

Rome.—The Minister of Agriculture is developing plans to produce castor oil on a large scale for use as a lubricant in aviation, automobiling, railroading and shipping. Italy has been importing large quantities of the oil.

Rome.—Seven Senators who refused to support their leaders' anti-Fascisto policy have resigned from the Catholic Party, the Giornale D'Italia says today. It names Senators Cossori, Conci, Nava, Montressor, Passerini, Reggio and Santucci.

Vienna, (I.N.S.) — Many arrests were made today following an attack by National Socialists upon pacifist organizations conducting a no-war demonstration.

Rangoon, India, (I.N.S.)—Moulmein, the Burma city made famous by Kipling in his poem "on the Road to Mandalay," has been swept by a tornado which killed many persons and caused heavy damage.

CATHOLICS IN U. S. TOTAL 20,103,761

Chicago, July 30.—There are 20,103,761 Catholics in the United States, according to the "Catholic Press Directory," just issued by Joseph H. Meier of Chicago. According to the directory there are 59,347 sisters and nuns; 22,545 Catholic clergymen; 17,062 Catholic churches, and 212 seminaries, universities and colleges.

'KING OF FRANCE' RAVING FOR THRONE

London, July 30 (AP).—The Duke of Orleans, who would be King of France today if royalty had survived in that country, is confined in a private house in Roehampton, an outlying suburb, under the care of physicians and four male attendants, says the Daily Express.

The head of the House of Bourbon, the newspaper asserts, suffers from delusions and has often been mildly delirious.

"I am a prisoner here!" he cries. "I, King of France, a prisoner."

Orleans paces the room impatiently. Occasionally he walks in the garden, where he drops wearily in a chair; but always an attendant follows closely.

A physician supervises the Duke's routine existence and specialists from London and the continent pay him visits. No one is allowed to see the patient without permission of the physicians, but many callers inquire for him.

Orleans' financial agent in England told the daily Express that the Duke contracted malaria in the course of his recent travels in Africa. He came to London from Brussels several months ago, staying at the Wimbledon residence of Mrs. Jarratt, formerly Lady Rosslyn.

There he became much worse and the family doctors agreed that the patient should receive special treatment.

Later the entourage of the Duke of Orleans took cognizance of the published reports and issued a statement that the Duke was suffering from malaria and dysentery, but that there was no warrant for the statement that the Duke was being guarded.

POLICE GET STOLEN CAR IN 90 MINUTES

Ninety minutes after a car had been reported as stolen in Roxbury, Patrolman Jeremiah Sheehan of the Morton street police station, Mattapan, recovered it at the end of an exciting chase which led from Mattapan square to Randolph road, Milton, in a commandeered auto.

The machine is owned by Thomas H. Kenney of No. 33 Lorne street, Roxbury. Sheehan had just gone on duty with a list of stolen cars when he saw it passing. Arrested in the car were Norman McLeod, age twenty years, of No. 4 Erie place, Jamaica Plain; Joseph Doherty, twenty-one, No. 102 Health street, Roxbury, and Michael T. Norton, twenty-two, of No. 111 Heath street, Roxbury.

IRENE CASTLE SAYS 'I AM NOT DIVORCED'

Is Still Married

IRENE CASTLE.

New York, July 30.—Irene Castle, the dancer, today added another touch of mystery to her matrimonial affairs when returning on the Lafayette she announced that, contrary to reports, she had not obtained a Paris divorce from Robert E. Treman, a manufacturer, of Ithaca, N. Y., to whom she was married shortly after the death of her first husband, Vernon Castle.

"I have no divorce and I have not instituted proceedings for one," said the dancer, who added that she would meet Mr. Treman when he returned to New York next week on the Majestic.

The dancer was firm in her denial despite dispatches received last week quoting court records to show that she had been granted a decree.

Asked why she did not return to America on the same boat with her husband, the dancer said Mr. Tremain already had obtained passage on the Majestic and that she had preferred the French line because on its ships her pets were humored properly.

Asked whether she had any intention to marry Ward Crane, a young moving picture actor with whom she was associated in the making of a recent film, she said:

"If I ever do get a divorce it will be because I want to be single and not because I want to get married again."

SAFE-CRACKING RECIPE FAILS TO WORK

Lawrence, July 30.—That well known little publication, "How to Crack a Safe," was eagerly devoured by William Doherty, twenty-five years old, of No. 41 Fairmont street, and John H. Lyons, forty-three, No. 229 Clark street.

"Wear two pairs of canvas gloves and you'll never leave tell-tale finger pr[illegible]

Early today residents in the vicinity of [illegible] Order of Moose heard what sounded like a plumbing job in progress. They called police reserves. Up Common street to No. 573 rolled the "wagon." Into the temple went the cops. When they reappeared John and Bill, double-gloved, reappeared with them.

In court they were held for the grand jury after confessing they had longed for the Saturday night receipts in the Temple safe.

"How'd you get in?" asked the judge.

"I'm a member, your honor," said Lyons. "I had a key, so I took Bill in with me."

"We made one mistake," chimed in Doherty, "we should have used hammers made of soft steel, then the neighbors wouldn't have heard us."

MOONSHINERS SHOT, ONE DEAD, IN BATTLE WITH U. S. AGENTS

Huntington, W. Va., July 30.—An unidentified moonshiner was killed and two wounded in a fight with prohibition agents here today. A posse was sent in search of four of the gang who got away.

Agents Frank Poe and Clay Williams reported that several days ago they discovered a still, concealed in a thicket and watched until this morning when four men arrived and started the still while one stood guard. The agents crept forward, but the snapping of a twig revealed their presence and the sentry fired. The other moonshiners ran to his assistance, the shooting became general and the sentry was killed. Within an hour the others had broken away, taking their wounded with them.

COOLIDGE SAYS 'MACHINES MAKE MACHINES OF MEN'

New York, July 30—A plea for more popular culture to offset the "materialism of the age" is made by Vice-President Calvin Coolidge in the current issue of Columbia, official organ of the K. of C.

"The present methods of industry," writes Coolidge, "with all their dependence upon invention and their subordination to science, are narrowing rather than broadening in their effect upon the employes.

"This in no degree detracts from the dignity of work, but it has produced a kind of work which is very different in its effect upon the development of mankind."

Machines of the shops, the Vice-President says, have a tendency to "make machines of the employes."

"This must be met," he says, "by a counter tendency. There is but one, some kind of cultural activity."

FATHER FALLS TO DEATH FIXING UP COSY HOME

Lawrence, July 30.—Sadness reigns in the little love nest Alzead Marceau was fixing for his wife and "little cabbage," at No. 20 Crosby street.

"Little cabbage" is Susane Marceau, 14-months old.

"We shall be happy, my sugar plums," said Alzead, pinching his chic little wife's plump cheek.

"We shall be very happy 'Little cabbage'," said Alzead, kissing his dimpled daughter.

Hanging new furnishings in the cozy little flat he fell through a window. His flight was three stories. It ended with him in awful agony, impaled on a picket fence. He died today in the General Hospital.

FOUND GUILTY ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

Abraham Abrahamovitz was found guilty today in Judge Palmer's court, Roxbury, of being present where narcotic drugs were found. He received a suspended sentence of three months in the House of Correction.

Lillian Nelson, also arrested at the same time in the apartment on Huntington avenue, was not present when her case was called, as she was ill in a Cambridge hospital.

POLICE TO STOP "PETTING PARTIES" IN WALTHAM CEMETERY

SPOONERS DESECRATE GRAVES

Searchlights Used in Crusade of City and Park Authorities

Spooning scenes in Mt. Feake Cemetery, Waltham, outvie the promiscuous and objectionable spooning parties of Lynn and Nahant beaches, according to Chairman Fred H. Kirwin, of the Waltham Cemetery Commission.

As the result of the appeals of Chairman Kirwin, Chief of Police James McKenna of the Waltham police department and Metropolitan Park police have combined in an effort to rid the Watch Town's "City of the Dead" from desecration by spooners.

Chief McKenna has detailed patrolmen to the heights of the cemetery. Metropolitan Park police, their patrol boats equipped with strong search lights, will patrol the waters of the Charles River, which pass the cemetery.

"PETTING" UNDER BAN.

"Many complaints have been made," said Chairman Kirwin. "The most flagrant actions at the beaches are mild beside some of the things that are going on beside the cemetery tombstones. There is a crowd of young men who respect neither the laws of God nor man, nor have they any regard for the memory of the dead.

"The place has become known as one where interference is unlikely unless a lot of noise is made."

DRINKING PARTIES.

On several occasions this Summer the police have been called to the place to break up a gang of moonshine consumers.

Lynn Mayor Defends Beach Conditions

Mayor Harland A. McPhetres of Lynn will take no official action to clear Lynn Beach of spooners.

"Shucks," said Mayor McPhetres, "Lynn Beach and its young people are all right. I never saw anything disgraceful on the beach, even in the evening. If anything is wrong there, which I doubt, it's up to the Metropolitan police.

PREACHER DISAPPOINTS.

Rev. F. Lewis Brooks disappointed a record sized audience in Advent Church, Lynn, by his failure to deliver his widely-heralded sermon on: "Lynn Beach, a Trip Through Hell." His sermon did not even mention the beaches.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Grace Casson, treasurer of the Mizpah Social Club of East Lynn, will discuss the matter. Several other clubs will also take action.

Petting parties in automobiles on the highways of Lexington are being broken up by Lexington police under Chief of Police Edward Leavitt.

CHINESE BAIT 'TIGER' AT ANCIENT FETE

The "tiger baiting" and fencing matches of the Chinese village fete, accompanied by the minors and half-tones of Chinese instrumental music, were revived in Tyler street, under the auspices of the Chinese Merchants' Association.

While fully 3,000 of Boston's Chinese residents lined the sidewalks, or watched from windows and door-steps, two Chinamen, masked in a bamboo-silk-paper tinsel, danced the folk dances of the early Chinese. The "tiger" was borrowed from fellow countrymen of Pell Mott and Doyer street, New York city, and the dancers were from the local Chinese theatre.

Following the dancing exhibition came exhibitions of the many forms of Chinese boxing and fencing. In fencing every sort of weapon from stout sticks to swords, spears and trident forks were used. The Boston Chinamen will continue their festivities today at Lake Pearl in Wrentham.

GUARD BROTHERS ON TRIAL AS SLAYERS

Cumberland Court House, Va., July 30.—A venire of 120 men had been summoned today for the selection of a jury in the trial of Robert P. and Larkin G. Garrett, brothers and former county officials, charged with murder of the Rev. E. S. Pierce.

The courthouse green was patrolled by an armed guard, and all persons entering the courtroom were searched for arms.

CHARMING GIRLS ALL! THEY ENTER CONTEST

EMILY MURGATROYD

MARRIED GIRLS ELIGIBLE FOR 'MISS BOSTON'

Married women may enter the Boston American's CHARMING GIRL tournament, the object of which is to find the loveliest young woman in Greater Boston and give her a week's trip to Atlantic City during the Fall pageant.

Who knows but what the MOST CHARMING girl in Metropolitan Boston is the proud possessor of two or three cute kiddies?

So get busy, married women! Don't let the single girls outdo you. Send in your entries NOW.

Among the most recent entrants is Miss Emily Murgatroyd of No. 3 Washburn street, Worcester, who has been Summering at cool Nantasket. Another is Dolores Newman of No. 12 Park street, Arlington. Miss Thelma Amarald of No. 299 Elon street, Cambridge, was nominated by a friend for the trip.

Others who are entered are Miss Janet Rundle, No. 17 Field street, Worcester; Miss Vera Burke, No. 9 Hosmer square, Somerville; Miss Helen Carr, No. 99 Franklin street, Somerville; Miss Eva M. Jones, Bellingham; Miss Mary Hinches, No. 19 Adams avenue, Hyde Park; Miss Ethel Child, No. 379 Columbus avenue; Miss Mabel Smith, No. 368 Riverway, Brookline.

Additional entries are Geraldine Fitzgerald, Salem; Miss Alice Glennon, No. 31 Train street, Dorchester; Miss Geraldine E. Meagher, Wilmington, Vt.; Miss Yvonne Harris, No. 118 Endicott avenue, Beachmont; Miss Betty Yoffe, No. 110 Humboldt avenue, Roxbury; Miss Cecile F. Selden, No. 81 Malden street, Revere; Miss Helen G. Goss, No. 47 Atherton street, Somerville, and Miss Regina Barton, Medford.

AT REVERE BEACH.

The American photographer planned to make snapshots free at Revere Beach today of girls who desired to enter the tournament. He arranged to take them in front of the State Bathhouse on the beach between one and three p. m.

HUB SYRIANS TO AID BARRED GIRL

Syrians in Boston have interested themselves in Pauline Zarick, Syrian girl awaiting deportation, in an effort to have her admitted to the country so that she may join her relatives in Frankfort, Ind.

Immigration authorities refused to allow the girl to enter when she arrived with her father, mother and sister, because of a weak lung. She is now ill in Carney Hospital, South Boston.

EFFORTS TO END CIGARMAKERS' WAGE STRIKE

Efforts will be made today to break the deadlock in the cigarmakers' strike and arrange a conference between the wage scale committee of the strikers and the manufacturers, it was announced at strikers' headquarters, No. 9 Appleton street, South End.

A mass meeting is being held today at the headquarters. The strike situation was reviewed by labor leaders and plans for the prosecution of the strike outlined.

Following refusal of the "Big Four" manufacturers to grant the union's wage increase, members of the union's wage scale committee declare they will open a drive on independent manufacturers and small dealers in an effort to establish union wages in as many shops as possible.

Many of the smaller dealers, alarmed at their rapidly dwindling stocks, have accepted the union wage scale, and are already paying the new wage rates, one member of the union committee says.

Mermaids Frolic With Bare Legs at Coney

New York, July 30.—The ban on stockingless mermaids was lifted at Coney Island and hundreds of girls with their legs bare poured onto the beach.

Their arms, however, were not so bare. A fad, believed to be original, was seen when many of the girls appeared with butterflies, bleeding hearts, rising suns and other designs tattooed to cover their vaccination marks.

This latest craze of the flapper has been brought about by the new sleeveless gowns, the girls declared.

Cold Sets Record

July 29 was the coldest Boston has experienced in twenty-six years. The mercury reached 57 degrees at 7 o'clock in the morning, and at 10 o'clock at night had only mounted two degrees. The record was set in 1880, with a temperature of 55. Generally fair and somewhat warmer is promised for tomorrow.

FLOOD OF SOFT COAL IF MINERS GO ON STRIKE

Atlantic City, July 30.—Their wage negotiations having been broken off because of a disagreement over the check-off, anthracite miners and operators were marking time today awaiting some development which would again bring them together.

John C. Brydon, president of the National Coal Association, says in case of a shutdown in the hard coal fields, the bituminous operators' special committee had arranged to flood anthracite-using communities with soft coal at prices that would meet the approval of the government and the public. He said he would lay the plan before the United States Coal Commission in Washington today and would offer a corps of volunteers to carry it through.

When President Lewis of the miners learned of the plan he issued a statement declaring that the National Coal Association was setting out to wreck the union, and create a strike of soft coal miners next April so that non-union operators could reap a harvest in profits.

Upon adjournment of the conferences, the secretary, at the suggestion of the operators, was instructed to reconvene the meeting when necessary. This was taken as an indication that the mine owners did not consider the situation hopeless. It also was pointed out that no substantial progress has ever been made in past hard coal wage conferences more than a month in advance of the expiration of a working agreement.

Those familiar with the situation do not believe agreement on the chief demands of the miners—a 20 per cent. increase in wages and full recognition of the union—will be reached before the present scale expires. Therefore, they expect a suspension of mining on Sept. 1 unless government or other influences prevail upon the miners to continue to work pending further negotiations.

One of the first propositions of the operators was that there be no suspension until all efforts at negotiating a new contract had failed. This, however, was refused by the miners.

SOCIETY BOYS IN RING BATTLE FOR GATE RECEIPTS OF $7

AUTHOR'S SON WINS IN BOUT

Kid Ryan Takes the Count in Fast "Go" in Exclusive Stockbridge

By ELEANOR EARLY

Stockbridge, July 30.—Jack Dempsey got $200,000 for licking Tom Gibbons, and broke the town of Shelby, Montana. Bobby Johnson got $3.50 for licking Billy Ryan, and electrified exclusive Stockbridge.

The Dempsey-Gibbons bout was all right in its way, but it hadn't a patch on the Johnson-Ryan affair, and society wasn't half so interested. For Bobby Johnson, thirteen years old, is none other than the son of Owen Johnson, famous author, and grandson of Robert Underwood Johnson, former ambassador to Italy. Billy Ryan, eleven years old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan, and grandson of Thomas Fortune Ryan, billionaire financier; and the two youngsters are the pride of the Berkshires.

"Luis Firpo, Wild bull of the Pampas," declared young Bobby today, "grabbed $71,000 for licking Jess Willard. Willard got $100,000 for that licking, and another $100,000 a month earlier for beating Floyd Johnson. Eugene Criqui got $100,000 plus for beating Johnnie Kilbane and getting beaten by Johnny Dundee. That all gave Billy and me an idea or two.

"'Society likes fights,' said Billy to me. 'What do you say if we clean up, Bob?'

"Now Billy and I we're pretty well matched, and we know a thing or two about boxing. We don't either of us get much of an allowance, and we're broke most of the time. It looked like a good chance of making some money."

COPIES SHELBY ARENA.

"We got to work a long time ago making the ring, which we tried to make as exactly as we could like the roped arena at Shelby. We got the gardeners and chauffeurs and butlers and valets and everybody to help us; and we had a grandstand and a balcony. Grandstand seats were twenty cents, and balcony seats were ten.

"And now there's one thing I wish you'd be sure to put in the paper—something like this:

"Robert Underwood Johnson, former envoy to Italy, accompanied by Mrs. Johnson, witnessed his grandson's first fight.'

"For my grandfather is an awfully dignified old man, and he doesn't want anyone to know he was there. Grandma will almost die if she sees it in the papers, and you know I think that's sort of snobbish of them. If they'd just as soon go to prize fights why be ashamed of it? So if you'll put it in, I'll be greatly obliged.

"My sisters were there too—Olivia and Katherine, and so was Billy's sister, Natalie. Those three are the prettiest girls in Stockbridge.

CHARGED FRAMEUP.

"My father didn't go, because he said it was all a frameup. He's sorry now though that he didn't, and he says he wouldn't miss our next bout for a thousand dollars. My kid brother, Denny, was there too—Denny's only five and his whole name is Owen Johnson, junior. Patricia, the baby, was there too. Patricia's only five months old, and I guess she's the youngest girl that ever went to a prize fight.

"It was a great success. All the people who get their names in the society columns and the social register were there, sitting down in the front rows, and clapping and cheering. We didn't get much money, but that's because it cost so much to make the ring. We paid all our own expenses, and we gave Donald and Billy O'Donaghue a dollar apiece. Billy and I got $3.50 each out of it. Billy wanted me to take most because I was the winner, but of course I wouldn't.

"A REGULAR GUY"

"Billy's a regular guy. He's been telling everyone that I knocked the stuffings out of him, but I really didn't. There wasn't a knockout. We'd advertised the fight to go for fifteen rounds, but they called it at the end of the tenth, and declared me winner. Personally, I think Billy is a better boxer than I.

"The prize fight went so well that we're planning a fencing match. That will be between Donald Ryan and me. We're practicing for it now, and we'll have the tickets out soon. I guess we'll probably have it at Ingleside, that's our place, under the same tent we held the fight."

Bobby Johnson is the picture of his famous father, and, like his father, he is not waiting until he grows up to try his skill at writing.

"Nobody knows it but Billy," he confessed today, "but I've a book half written. I started it about a year ago, and it's along the lines of dad's 'Varmint,' 'Tennessee Shad,' and 'The Prodigious Hickey.' It has a corking plot, but the descriptions aren't so good."

BERKSHIRE GLADIATORS

PAPERWEIGHT EXPONENTS OF PRIMAL COMBAT

At left "Billy" Ryan, grandson of Thomas Fortune Ryan, demonstrating how he blocked some—not all—of the hefty rights aimed at him by "Bobby" Johnson, son of Owen Johnson, novelist, in the famous Second Battle of the Century at Stockbridge, which was won by "Bobby." Although extravagant prices—20 and 10 cents—were charged those who witnessed the fight, no bank has as yet been reported as broken. At right (inset) is "Denny" Johnson, "Bobby's" brother, who according to the "champeen," is a pugilistic wonder for his years—five—and who, it is asserted, will be a ring whirlwind when he grows up.

THURSTON, STATE G. O. P. CHIEF, DEAD

Fall River, July 30.—Edward A. Thurston, former chairman of the Republican State Committee, died following an operation for appendicitis in a private hospital here.

Edward A. Thurston

Mr. Thurston has been active in the Republican party in the State and Nation for twenty years. In the last Presidential campaign, he took the stump in the West for President Harding. He was considered one of Harding.

Mr. Thurston, fifty-one years old, was born in Fall River and was graduated from Brown University in 1893 and from Harvard Law School in 1895.

MOONSHINE SEIZED IN SO. BOSTON RAID

Sergeant John J. Flynn and Patrolman Macomber of the City Point station raided the premises at No. 654 Dorchester avenue, South Boston, occupied by Michael Okuniwski, and seized a large quanity of moonshine whiskey and bottling implements. He will appear in the South Boston Court.

Landlord to Take 225 Children on Big Outing

New York, July 30.—Max Dick, owner of a large East Side tenement house known as the "House of Children," notified his tenants that he soon will give an outing for the 225 children living in the tenement.

He appointed three woman tenants as a committee to make arrangements for the event.

Mr. Dick is a popular landlord. During the twenty-five years he has owned the house he has never raised the rent. In 1918 he offered $500 for every time the stork left twins to one of his tenants, and $150 for every ninth child, if it was a boy.

DRIVER CHARGED WITH BEATING HORSES

James S. Donovan, driver for the Whiting Milk Sompany in Nantasket, was arrested on charges of drunkenness and cruelty to animals, when he left the driver's seat of the wagon he was driving to beat his horse over the head with a milk bottle. The horse was badly cut and bruised.

PLAN TO REGULATE GRAIN 'FUTURES'

Washington, July 30.—Holding further Federal regulation of futures trading in grain necessary to "prevent abuses," the Federal Trade Commission, in the concluding section of its report on the methods and operations of grain exporters, published today, makes a number of recommendations to that end.

Legislation requiring daily publication by the Chicago Board of Trade of the total volume of the preceding day's operations in futures and open trades in each grain and acceptance by the board of grain delivery on futures contracts at other important markets when necessary to prevent a squeeze or corner at Chicago, were outstanding among the commission's recommendations.

The report also proposed that to prevent possible abuses and risks in the practice, all brokers and commission men, or officers or large stockholders of companies dealing in futures for customers, be prohibited from speculating in grain future for their own account.

PLANES TO BOMB BATTLESHIPS NOW IN HUB

Washington, July 30.—Two obsolete United States battleships, the New Jersey and the Virginia, now in the Charlestown Navy Yard, will be sacrificed during August as aerial bomb targets.

The two veterans of the navy will be sunk in about 300 feet of water, fifty miles off Cape Hatteras, N. C., by bombs dropped from Martin bombing planes from the army aerial base at Langley Field, Va., flying more than a mile high.

Plans for the tests call for the dropping of bombs from altitudes of 6,000 feet and upward. The final casts will be made from altitudes of from 15,000 to 20,000 feet, to determine the accuracy with which large bombs can be dropped from altitudes of three and four miles in the air. The bombs weigh 2,000 pounds.

The exact date for the bombing practice will be determined upon the exchange of ratifications by parties to the Five-Power Naval Treaty.

STABBED IN ROW OVER RENT IN SOMERVILLE

Uxbridge, July 30.—Federal Prohibition Agent John Mothridge of Worcester, assisted by ex-Chief of Police James Fisher and Patrolman Frank Mills of this town, raided two liquor establishments here. No arrests were made. On the premises of James Mulvaney, Depot square, Blackstone, thirteen barrels of beer, said to exceed the legal percentage of alcoholic content, a gallon of "moonshine," and two stills were found. At the home of John Smith, North Main street, two stills and a quantity of liquor and beer were found, it is charged. Samples were taken for chemical analysis in both raids.

13 BARRELS OF BEER SEIZED IN UXBRIDGE

Comallo Faranti, thirty-four years old, of No. 259 Beacon street, Somerville, was rushed to the Somerville City Hospital suffering from stab wounds about the head and shoulder inflicted, he charges, by Vincenzo Giligari, of the same address, following a quarrel. Police are now searching for Giligari. Faranti was found wandering along Beacon street in a dazed condition, with blood streaming from his head. He told the police he had quarreled with Giligari about a board bill. Giligari, he said, drew a knife and stabbed him five times.

GERMAN 'RED' DAY PROVES FIZZLE

By FRITZ EBERT, JR.,
Son of President Ebert of Germany.

Berlin, July 30 (I.N.S.)—Never has an event so bombastically heralded fizzled out so miserably as anti-Fascisti day in Germany.

Timid legions had removed their money to safety and in some cafes Unter den Linden people had to sip their Sunday coffee behind drawn iron shutters.

People claiming to have inside information predicted the Soviet star would ascend and that "several hundreds of bourgeois would be dangling from lampposts."

In spite of the wildest nation-wide agitations and in spite of the far-spread need and misery of the German masses, the German workers refused to follow the Communist desperadoes.

This is not only proof of the firm foundation of the republic, but also of the conservative moderation of German labor.

But we must not deceive ourselves that the danger is over. On the contrary, it is just commencing. The menace of civil war is with us every minute. Revolutions and civil war are not made upon an appointed day and hour, but come spontaneously, usually at a moment when least suspected. Our supreme crisis in Germany is still to come.

Debate in Parliament to Reveal Secrets

London, July 30, (A.P.)—The light of publicity seems likely soon to be thrown on the reparations negotiations, through an airing in the House of Commons, which is to adjourn Thursday until November.

There will be a full metting of the British Cabinet tomorrow to consider the note, and it is expected that tomorrow night the House of Commons will end the secrecy of allied negotiations. It is anticipated Prime Minister Baldwin will outline the British policy.

French and Belgians Stand by Treaty Terms

Paris, July 30 (A.P.)—The French and Belgian notes in answer to the British reparation communication were both slightly retouched before being transmitted for delivery in London.

It is confidently asserted in well-informed quarters that Premier Poincare's reply is set squarely on the Treaty of Versailles and on the Franco-Belgian policy outlined on January 11—that negotiations with Germany are impossible until her passive resistance ceases, and that the evacuation of the Ruhr is impossible until the payment of reparation is absolutely guaranteed.

Defends Maxwell

MRS. ALLAN A. RYAN
Wife of New York financier, declares her husband acted hastily and without reason in linking her name with that of alleged author of "poison pen" letters.

20 Germans Arrested in Plot at Cologne

London, July 30.—Twenty Germans were arrested and 1,500 pounds of dynamite seized following the discovery of a plot at Cologne, says a Central News dispatch from Berlin.

A proclamation issued by President Ebert appeals for the preservation of law and order and charges France is determined to rob Germany of the very means of existence.

President Ebert

The proclamation also charges France's conduct will render Germany totally unable to pay and thus prevent the reestablishment of peace.

MAXWELL IS DEFENDED BY MRS. RYAN

get unduly excited about it, and I didn't take any such action as Mr. Ryan took when he got the letters naming me. The letter wasn't nice, either; it contained a very unpleasant reference.

"I hope Mr. Ryan is satisfied now of my innocence. If not—" Mrs. Ryan shrugged her shoulders.

"I can't understand his taking part in a raid on Mr. Maxwell's apartment," she continued. "But I would hardly blame him for it."

"There is no divorce being contemplated," Mrs. Ryan insisted, and she and her husband are not actually separated, although they are not spending the Summer together. He hasn't been at Sebago Lake so far, she said, but he may come for a visit.

The fact that photographs of her and an undergarment, which Ryan identified as Mrs. Ryan's, were found in a locked drawer in Maxwell's apartment doesn't bother Mrs. Ryan.

"All this ado about the underthing, whatever it was, is nonsense," Mrs. Ryan said. "I can't comprehend how Mr. Ryan thinks he has identified it as mine. You know, they sell them a thousand at a time, and in other countries as well as in America.

"I'm sure I didn't drop anything like that, and I don't remember ever giving such a thing away."

NO RADIOGRAMS SENT.

Mrs. Ryan again denied authorship of three radiograms she is said to have sent to Maxwell, according to the brief field by the district attorney's office, and which were printed in newspapers. One of them contained the words, "Love, love, love of my life," and another, "If you had only been the father of my children."

She also denied having expressed any regret that Maxwell was not the father of her children.

"Of course not!" she exclaimed. "The idea! Every one who knows me knows I live above all for my children, and that I wouldn't change them one bit, one bit—not a speck.

"It's a nasty story, and not so amusing when you're the victim," she said.

"Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Boston for week ending Saturday, July 28th, on shipments sold out, ranged from 12.50 cents to 18.50 cents per pound and averaged 18.11 cents per pound."—Advt.

Somerville Wife Accused, Turns on Gas

WIFE LEFT HOME 3 TIMES

Husband Doubted Story That "Other Man" Forced Her to Run Away

When her husband doubted her story that she had been forced to run away with another man under threat of death, Mrs. Helen Duncan, twenty-two years old, attempted suicide by turning on the gas at her home, No. 29 Mystic avenue, Somerville.

The young wife apparently repented her action, however, for, crawling to a window, she summoned aid. She was removed to the Somerville Hospital, where she is expected to recover.

At the hospital Mrs. Duncan declared she had despaired of living when her husband refused to believe her story that shee had applied for a warrant for the arrest of the man who she claims enticed her from her home and held her a prisoner in a room on Columbus avenue.

Nelson Duncan, the woman's husband, stated that his wife left him last February, deserting her fourteen-month-old child, to go away with a Chelsea man. He went in search of her, he said, and found her in a room on Columbus avenue.

Duncan declared he did not then ask his wife to return to him, but that ten weeks later she called him on the telephone and begged to be allowed to return. He took her back, he said, but two weeks later she again disappeared. Again she returned, only to disappear a third time, Duncan claimed.

NEGRO BURNED AT STAKE FOR ATTACK

Yazoo City, Miss., July 30.—Willie Minnifield, negro, was burned at the stake in a swamp near here by a mob, which accused him of attacking a white woman twenty miles southeast of here with an axe, inflicting wounds which physicians believe will prove fatal. Minnifield and another negro were captured by a posse. According to the posse, the other negro, who escaped, declared that he stood outside the woman's home while Minnifield went in to attack her. Minnifield was taken from the posse by the mob

SIUCIDE AFTER HIS GOLDEN WEDIDNG

Springfield, July 30. — Three months after his golden wedding anniversary, Alfred A. Rudall, seventy-seven years old, of Westfield, committed suicide by hanging. He had been in failing health. Friends organized a search and went to Castle Hall, headquarters of a lodge to which he belonged. They found his body. Rudall was born in England, but came to this country when young. He formerly lived in Hartford.

DEPARTING PASTOR GETS $3700 PURSE

Rev. John R. McCool, for twenty years a curate at St. John's Catholic Church, North Cambridge, was presented with a purse of $3,700, on the eve of his departure for Medfield, where he will be pastor of St. Edward's Church. More than 1,000 parishoners gathered in St. John's school hall to bid their curate Godspeed.

GIRL RUN DOWN BY AUTO IN QUINCY

MISS CATHERINE McDONALD

Hingham girl seriously injured when struck by auto while standing at the curb in front of a Quincy dance hall.

GIRL KILLED AS AUTO CRASHES INTO TREE

A girl was killed, and another girl and two men were injured in an automobile crash in Belmont, as the climax of an alleged wild joy ride.

Both couples, the police say, were drunk. The driver is under arrest at the hospital charged with manslaughter. All are colored.

The dead girl is Miss Harriett Burke, of No. 147 Erie street, Cambridge. Her companions who were injured were:

Miss Catherine McDonald, 56 North street, Hingham, is in a critical condition at Sylvester Hospital, Hull, as the result of being struck by an automobile driven by William B. Shine, a Quincy prize fighter.

Shine was taken to the Hingham police station by officer Edward McKee. He was released on bail.

Two women were injured when the machine they were riding in was struck by a truck, throwing them into a three-foot excavation on Canterbury street, near Morton street, Roslindale.

They are Annie Walsh of No. 602 Canterbury street, and Mary Logan of No. 174 Neptune street, both of Roslindale.

Three men and two women had a narrow escape from serious injury on Middlesex avenue near the Somerville Bathhouse, Somerville. One auto owned and operated by Dana L. Colson of No. 693 Fulton street, Medford, collided with a sedan, owned and operated by Henry F. Lloyd of No. 15 Bennett street, Everett. Alice and Glydas Sparrow of No. 19 Woodland avenue, Everett, riding in the machine with Lloyd, escaped injury.

LOVE-LORN GIRL OF 16 TAKES POISON

Accordingly, when her relatives told her she must give him up, the girl drank iodine. She was removed to the Haymarket Square Relief Station, where she is recovering.

At the hospital, the girl told of her love for John Smith of Charlestown.

"I met him three months ago. Those three months have been the happiest of my life. When I was told that I would be beaten if I did not give John up, I decided that I wanted to die."

Asked what she would do if she were beaten when she left the hospital, she replied.

"I will take iodine again."

SOUTH END BOY BITTEN BY DOG

Morris Michelson, ten years old, No. 26 Rose street, South End, is in City Hospital suffering from a dog bite on the wrist.

The boy was walking on Northampton street near Washington street with his brother, Abraham, fourteen years old, when the dog ran up to the boys and bit the smaller one, inflicting a serious wound. Police are searching for the dog, believed to be owned by a Northampton street negro.

THIEF GETS $500 IN JEWELS

Home of Mrs. Myra C. Ferguson, in Fisher Hill Section, Reported Robbed

More than $500 in jewelry was stolen in a daylight robbery in the home of Mrs. Myra C. Ferguson, No. 15 Hyslop road, Brookline, in the Fisher Hill district.

Robberies in the Fisher Hill, Babcock Hill and Longwood districts have been numerous during the Summer vacation months.

Mrs. Ferguson was on the first floor of her home, when she thought she heard someone on an upper floor, but paid no attention to it. When she later had occasion to go to the upper floor, she found a heavy brass-bound jewel box, containing more than $500 in jewelry, had been stolen.

Neighbors reported having seen a well-dressed youth running across the lawn from Mrs. Ferguson's home at about the time the robbery is believed to have taken place.

About a week ago, Patrolman Munsell of the Brookline police gave chase to a well-dressed youth about twenty-two years old, who spoke with a foreign accent. The youth was thought to be responsible for several of the breaks in Brookline.

Although the youth escaped, there was a let-up in breaks and robberies until the robbery at the home of Mrs. Ferguson.

MOTHER ILL, SEEKS MISSING DAUGHTER

Mrs. C. E. Heacock, an aged widow of Derry, N. H., seriously ill at the New Hampshire State Hospital at Concord, seeks news of her daughter, Mrs. Jessie M. Carpenter, once of Haverhill, Mass.

Mrs. Jessie M. Carpenter

The following letter is published at the request of Samuel Heacock, brother of the woman sought:

"Dear Sister: "I am writing a few lines to you, dear Sister, through the kindness of the Boston American, to tell you our mother is very sick at the State Hospital at Concord, N. H., and longs to see you. Mother needs you now more than ever. There may not be much time, for she is very ill. Come at once. Brother Sam."

RICH BOY FOUND LIVING IN SHACK

New York, July 30.—Bobby Niles, known as the "Poor Little Rich Boy of New York," is back home on Riverside Drive, after spending two months in a shack made from a piano box. Bobby thought it was high time he went to work and so left home and went looking for a job. But owing to the fact he had no working papers he was forced to ask assistance from a tax. driver, who "staked" him.

Boys of his own age became friendly with Bobby and everything was going nicely until some one recognized him and told his mother, who brought him back home to study law.

Waits 33 Years

MARY BURKE

She's seeking suitor for whom she has waited a life time and hasn't seen for 18 years.

3 WIVES ARGUE WHAT TO DO WITH HUBBY

New York, July 30.—Seated in the detectives' room at the Eighth street station, Harry Bernard, thirty-eight, a printer, met his wives. There were three of them.

There was Anna, mother of two of his children, whom he married thirteen years ago. There was Ira Stern, who, since November of last year, believed she was "the first and only," and last there was Rose Isaacs, with whom Harry has been living since April. When they were united with considerable pomp on the Lower East Side.

Each of them showed an entirely different attitude toward their spouse. Anna looked at Harry, shook her head, elevated her shoulders and with a deprecating movement of her hands, said:

"He's not worth bothering about."

Ida, wife Now 2, thought differently, and said so.

"What! Not prosecute him? I'll have the best lawyers in the town to see that he stays behind the bars. He's broken my life. I put him in jail and I'll keep him there."

Before she had finished her tirade Rose, the youngest, rose in her seat and declared:

"Well, if you're going to get the best lawyer to keep my Harry in jail, I'll get the next best lawyer to see that my Harry does not stay there."

Detective Ramsberg, who had arrested Bernard on the complaint of wife No. 2, shooed the gesticulating women toward the door.

On the street the women continued their argument. As Detective Ramsberg led Bernard to his cell he was heard to remark:

"Anna's right. I ain't worth it."

3 BOYS ESCAPE NANTASKET POLICE

Three boys, all under fifteen years of age, who escaped from the Nantasket police station, were recaptured after a two-mile chase by the police in an auto truck.

The boys are charged with being responsible for wholesale thefts of articles from automobiles at Nantasket. They were arrested by Patrolman Philbrick of the Metropolitan police.

At the police station they gave their names as George Corey, thirteen years old of South street; Jacob Krasrugo, fifteen years old, of Massachusetts avenue, and Henry Mezteth, thirteen years old, of Summer street, all of Quincy.

Parents were notified and told to come to Nantasket police station.

The boys escaped while being taken to the wash room. They ran for the door and got away. They were turned over to their parents after their recapture.

HUNTS BEAU MISSING 18 YEARS

South End Woman, 50, Has Waited 33 Years for Suitor, Now 73

Mary Burke, fifty years old and lonesome, seeks news of her seventy-year-old sweetheart, She says he is Thomas F. McCormack, whose whereabouts have been unknown to her for eighteen years.

Twenty years ago Miss Burke says McCormack wrote her: "To live to make you happy, to satisfy your every need, to never leave you—that is my only wish. I love you more than ever, Mary dear, and I want you."

Thirty-three years ago, when Mary Burke was a lass of seventeen, she says, McCormack, then thirty-seven, and superintendent of a paper company of this country and Canada, chanced to meet her while passing through New York on a business trip.

THWARTED BY CHILDREN.

The friendship remained platonic, because McCormack was married, Miss Burke declared.

At the end of many years, Mrs. McCormack died and the two were free to marry. McCormack's children objected to the match, and Miss Burke refused to permit him to make an alliance that might bring discord into his family.

McCormack, according to Miss Burke, told her he had willed his property to her. A few years later he disappeared. She has not heard from him since.

Thirty-three years of her life have been spent waiting for her prince-charming to marry her. Today, Miss Burke, gray-haired and lonely, keeps a South End rooming house, where, during her spare time, she reads faded letters and recalls the sweet romance of her youth.

LOVES HIM ALONE.

"I have never loved another," Miss Burke said. "I loved Thomas, I always have, and I know I always shall. I do not know where he is. I have not heard from him for eighteen years. He must be dead.

"I know he wanted me to have part of his estate, and I know if he were living, I would not be slaving my life away in a rooming house. I gave him the best years of my life, and I am entitled to something."

ASYLUM INMATE'S WEALTH TO NIECES

New York, July 30.—It developed during court proceedings that the estate of Mrs. Margaret W. Folsom, who has been confined in the McLean Asylum at Waverley, and previously in Somerville for fifty years, has an estate which yields more than $165,000 a year. She has seventeen nieces, all of whom are allowed $5,000 a year each by the court, which controls the estate. When the aged patient dies the seventeen nieces will divide more than $2,000,000.

DINE ON YACHT AND ESCAPE WITH $1,000

Beverly, July 30.—Captain E. H. Hernasen of the yacht Cinthra, owned by B. C. Hutchinson of Philadelphia, offered $250 reward for the capture of the thieves, who boarded the yatch moored off West Beach, Beverly Farms, cooked themselves a meal and then stole nearly $1000 worth of valuables.

The raiding party covered galley windows with canvas to prevent lights from disclosing their presence on board.

A young and beautiful woman creates a sensation at a first night in New York by rising in her seat at the theatre and coolly surveying the audience through her glasses, after the European fashion. Clavering and his friend, Dinwiddie, are immediately interested, and the latter receives a shock, declaring that she is the image of a former society belle, Mary Ogden, though much younger than she should be at that time. He thinks she may be a daughter. Clavering suggests that a society leader, Mrs. Oglethorpe, be asked to solve the mystery. She consents and calls on the fair unknown, but learns nothing. Clavering follows Mary home from the theatre and aids her to get into the house as she has lost her key. She invites him in and tells him she is Countess Josef Zattiany. He nearly guesses her secret.

READ ON. THE THRILLS COME FAST

INCREDIBLE. Unthinkable. She!

What should she do? Flee? She had come to New York for one purpose only, to settle her financial affairs in the briefest possible time and return to the country where her work lay.

But she had been detained beyond expectation, for the slow reorganization of one of the companies in which a large portion of her fortune was invested would not be complete without her final signature.

There were other important transfers to be made, and moreover Judge Trent had insisted that she become thoroughly acquainted with her business affairs and able to maintain an intelligent correspondence with her trustees when he himself had retired. She had shown a remarkable aptitude for finance and he was merciless in his insistence, demanding an hour of her time every day.

Business. She hated the word. What did it matter—— But she knew that it did matter, and supremely. She might have the beautiy, the brains, and the sex domination to win men to her way of thinking when she launched herself into the maelstrom of politics, but she was well aware that her large fortune would be half the battle. It furnished the halo and the sinews, and it gave her the power to buy men who could not be persuaded. She had vowed that Austria should be saved at any cost.

No, she could not go now. She must remain for another month—two months, possibly. She was no longer in that undisciplined stage of youth when flight from danger seems the only solution. To wreck the lives of others in order to secure her own peace of mind would make her both ridiculous and contemptible in her own eyes, and she had yet to despise herself. She would "stick it out," "see it through," to quote the vernacular of these curious American novels she had been reading; trusting that she had merely been suffering from a flurry of the senses . . . not so remarkable perhaps. . . .

But her mind drifted back to the past month. Senses? And if it were not that alone, but merely the inevitable accompaniment of far stranger processes . . . if it were what she had once so long sought and with such disastrous results. . . . She had believed for so many years that it existed somewhere, in some man . . . that it was every woman's right . . . even if it could not last forever. . . . But while it lasted! After all, imagination had its uses. It helped to prolong as well as create. . . . She sank back and closed her eyes, succumbing to an ineffable languor.

It lasted but a moment. She started up with an exclamation of impatience and disgust; and she shivered from head to foot. The room was bitterly cold. There were only ashes on the hearth.

Clavering turned hot and cold several times during his walk home. He had been atrociously rude, impertinent. If she hadn't ordered him out of the house it must have been because she was a creature of moods, and he had merely amused her for the hour. No doubt she would wake up in a proper state of indignation and give her servants orders. . . . Or—was she sincere when she demanded his friendship, willing to put up with his abominable manners, trusting to her own wit to defeat him, lull his suspicions? Friendship! The best thing for him to do was to avoid her like the plague.

He hated to admit it, but he was afraid of her, not so much of falling in love with her and going through tragedy, which was probably what it would come to, as of the terrible force so skillfully hidden in that white and delicate body, of a powerful personality fortified by an unimaginable past. She gave the impression of a woman who had been at grips

FLAMING YOUTH ❧ By WARNER FABIAN

Intimately Revealing the Life of a Modern and Precocious Society Flapper

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Mona Fentriss, young, beautiful and the wife of a consulting engineer, has been told by her physician, Bob Osterhout, who is in love with her, that she has only a short time to live. Mona gives a gay party, telling Pat to go to bed, but the latter borrows a sister's dress, steals downstairs and has "a taste of life." Mona dies and Constance receives a call from Cary Scott, her mother's first admirer. Scott is much taken with Pat. A party is planned for the Dangerfields to christen the new swimming pool. A thunder storm puts out the lights and the guests go into the water without clothes. Dee modestly hesitates on the balcony and then—the lights came on, revealing her in a blinding glare. Pat succumbs to Cary Scott. Dee's husband is badly hurt. She refuses to elope with Wollaston. Pat confesses to Dee her relations with Cary. She goes to New York to see Ralph Fentriss' "flossie" and is invited to Edna Carroll's parties. She meets Leo Stenak, and arranges to go to him in Boston but his appearance kills her love. She becomes engaged to Standish, and tells him she has had an affair with another man. He refuses to desert her. NOW GO ON WITH THIS ENTHRALLING STORY.

PAT'S swift, apprehensive intelligence kept him up to his best form. As the coffee was finished he said reproachfully:

"You've made me chatter my head off. And I'm supposed to have rather a gift for silence. How do you work your spells?"

"By being sunk in admiring interest," she answered, smiling up at him as she put on her gloves. "You've given me the most delightful hour I've had for years."

"But it needn't end here, need it?" he protested anxiously. "Don't you want me to go to a matinee, or something?"

"There aren't any. It's Friday."

"So it is. But there are always the movies."

Pat knew that she ought not to go; there were a dozen important errands to be done. But: "Oh, very well," she said. Duties could wait. Pleasure was something you had to grab before it got away from you. The philosophy of the flapper.

At the "motion picture palace" they got box seats, the chairs suggestively close together. She wondered whether he would try to hold her hand; also whether she would let him if he did. Probably she would; there was no harm in that, and it gave a pleasant sense of companionship. Most of the boys with whom she went to the theatre or movies expected it. Apparently Warren Graves didn't. He made no move in that direction. Piqued a little, nevertheless Pat liked him the better for it. Monty might perhaps have objected if he knew. And, with a start, she discovered that only just then had she thought of Monty Standish. He had been, for the time, quite forgotten in the interest of a more enlivening and demanding association.

What the "serial" of the play was Pat could hardly have told; "Some hurrah about the West," she informed T. Jamison James afterward. At the conclusion of it there came a "news feature," showing scenes about the building where the League of Nations session was being held. Various noted personages appeared, walked with the knee-sprung, unnatural stalk of the screen across the space and vanished. Then it was as if a blinding flash had been projected from the square. An unforgettable figure stood out amidst the crowd, the face turned toward her, the eyes, with the faint ironic lift of the brows, looking down into her soul, arousing a tumult and a throbbing which left her hardly breath enough to gasp out:

"Cary Scott!"

"Do you know Scott?" asked her escort interestedly.

"Yes. He used to visit in Dorrisdale. Do you?"

"Quite well. Everyone on the inside in Europe knows him; he's one of the men who are doing big things under the surface at the conference."

"Tell me," urged Pat as they left the place.

He sketched Scott's career as confidential adviser to several of the most important of the protagonists in that Titan's struggle. "He's a sort of liaison officer, knowing France and this country as he does. He's had a rather rough time of it, lately, poor chap."

"Is he ill?" Pat had a struggle to control her voice.

"No. A domestic smash. His wife—that was—is a demonish sort of female. However, he's got well rid of her now. To be accurate, he let her get rid of him. Over-decent of him, all things considered."

"Perhaps she had cause, too." Pat hated herself as she said it. But she craved to know.

"Nothing of that kind," was the positive reply. "Scott has been living like an anchorite. They say he was hard hit here in America. As to that, I don't know. Certainly he has been devoting himself to his work with no room for any other devotion. Which is more than can be said of his ex-wife."

"I never met her," Pat heard her voice saying, and quite admired it for its tone of casual interest. "She didn't come to Dorrisdale."

"Speaking of Dorrisdale, I'm at Washington for a while. Mayn't I run up to see you?"

"No. I'm afraid not."

"That's a little—disappointing."

"You see, I'm going to be terribly busy until my wedding."

"Wedding? Oh! All my felicitations. I didn't know."

"Yes. I'm to be married to Monty Standish next month."

Even as her lips spoke the words her soul denied them. In the dominant depths of her, she knew that she could never marry Monty Standish now. Her thoughts, so lightly detached from her fiance by the easy charm of Warren Graves, had been claimed, coerced, irrevocably absorbed by the swift-passing phantom presentment of her former lover. The bond created when she had given herself to him was as nothing compared to this imperative summons across the spaces.

After a night of passionate struggle, succeeded by resolute thinking, she wired Monty to come on. When he came she broke the engagement. It was ruthless, cruel, unfair. Pat had no excuses, no extenuations to offer. She simply stood firm. Monty returned to college, failed of his graduation, and let it be known among his indignant friends and relatives that Pat had ruined his career. Hot and righteous though his wrath was, he never so much as hinted at Pat's secret. Stupid, unstable, self-satisfied, spoiled: the plaster idol of an athlete-worshipping age; but nevertheless a gentleman within whom one flame of honor burned clear and constant behind its dull encasement.

The Great Reform Novel of the Year, Baring Innermost Secrets of Luxury-Loving Class

Pat's family variously raged, begged and protested. Pat let them. They prophesied social ostracism for her. She shrugged away the suggestion as improbable in the first place and not worth worrying about anyway. But she would have gone away had it not been for her self-assumed responsibility to her broken brother-in-law. And it was from him that her main support came. From the first he stood by her unquestioning.

"You're awfully good to me, Jimmie-Jams," she said one day as she was wheeling him in the garden, having dismissed the attendant. "What did you really think when I told you I wasn't going to marry Monty?"

A smile of justified cleverness lighted up his pain-worn face. "I'd never thought that you would."

"Cute little Jimmie! Why not?"

"Too much brains. He'd never keep you interested and you found it out in time."

"Not too soon," observed the girl with a grimace. "The family are still raising merry Hades about it."

"Naturally. You don't think you're entitled to any Sunday-school award for good behavior on the thing, do you?"

"No. I don't," admitted Pat. But she pouted.

A silence fell between them. It lasted for a full turn around the garden. Tired of pouting, Pat broke it.

"Want to play bezique, Jimmie?"

"No."

"Want me to read to you?"

"No, dear."

"What the devil do you want? Oh, I'm sorry, Jimmie! I believe I've got nerves. Never knew there were such things before."

"Pat, stop the chair."

"What's the idea, Jimmie?"

"Come around here where I can see you."

"As per order."

"I know the man."

"What man?"

"The other man."

"I've been acquainted with several of 'em in my life."

"So I've been given to understand. I'm talking about the man on whose account you broke your engagement."

"You're seeing things, Jimmie. Monty himself is the nigger in that woodpile."

"What about Cary Scott?"

The look with which she faced him did not waver. "Well, what about him?"

"He's coming back."

"Coming back? Here?" Still her eyes were steady, but there was the faintest catch in her breathing.

WATCH FOR SCORPIO

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

OVER the white fields and in the frosty air of Winter the king of the constellations, Orion, blazes and flashes with diamond splendor; but there is a Summer king, too, in starland, Scorpio, whose stary ornaments have the softer glow of the golden jewels. For every five persons who know Orion there is probably only one who knows Scorpio.

The principal reason, no doubt, is that the great constellation of the Scorpion lies so far toward the south—its chief star, Antares, is twenty-six degrees south of the equator—that in the middle and northern latitudes of the United States it almost skims the horizon even when on the meridian, unless one lives on the seashore or in a level country.

Still, if one knows when and where to look, good views of Scorpio may be had from any part of the country, and the sight is worth the slight painstaking that it may cost.

An excellent time to see Scorpio is in the evenings of July, from the end of twilight until 9 to 10 p. m.

One "up-to-date" reason why everybody ought to become acquainted with Scorpio is that its leader, Antares, has recently been shown by the interferometer method of measurement to be largest star (sun) whose diameter has as yet been ascertained. Antares brought into our solar system, with its centre placed wheer the centre of the sun is, would swallow up the planets Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars, its diameter being no less than 400,000,000 miles, which is 465 times the diameter of the sun.

In bulk it exceeds the sun a hundred million times. If you doubt that just cube 465 and see what you get.

Antares is a fiery-red star—wonderful in its fierce, leaping, ruddy glare, when seen with a telescope through air that is a little unsteady. Close in its burning rays a good glass, of four or five inches aperture, reveals a little seventh or eighth magnitude companion star of a bright green color! The contrast of hues is as beautiful as it is astonishing.

The stars Lamda and Upsilon mark the upraised sting of the imaginary scorpion, whose fiery heart in marked by Antares, while Zeta and Delta are in the head. In the older star maps Scorpio was represented extending its claws over what is now the constellation Libra.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When making a condolence call, which is the proper thing to say to the person who has lost a dear one—"I am sorry" or "I am sorry for your trouble?" L. G. B.

IN making a condolence call try to express sympathy more by your understanding manner and your warm handshake than by your words. Say, naturally and convincingly and sincerely, "May I tell you how sorry I am."

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

(1) When I am handed a "calling card" should I accept it or, after glancing over it, return it? If so, what should be said?

(2) Two young ladies and one gentleman, or vice versa, having entered an ice cream parlor, how should they be seated?

(3) What time should a young man call upon a young lady, and what time should he leave?

ANXIOUS.

YOU should not return the card. Keep it and thank the giver.

(2) Usually the lady sits in the seat between the two gentlemen. In the case of two ladies and one gentleman, the gentleman chooses for them the most convenient and advantageous seats and he takes the remaining one. For instance, he takes the seat on an aisle, or that the waiter has to pass often, one that the waiter on a door, or one near a service table.

(3) A young man should call about 8 or 8.30 and leave at 10 or 10.30.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"A man is a bundle of relations, a knot of roots."

Those who think they can be absolutely independent of the rest of the world should ponder these words of Emerson, on "History."

"Dishonor marks a woman's cowardly foe."

Wrote Archilochus, a Greek poet who lived about 600 B. C. in a lampoon on a prominent Greek family of his day.

"One on God's side is a majority."

Real majorities do not consist in mere numbers, said Wendell Phillips in an oration on John Brown, delivered in Brooklyn, November 1, 1859.

"The crime makes the shame, not the scaffold."

Charlotte Corday (1768-1793) wrote to her father after she had killed Marat, the French dictator.

ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza.

ARE you over-weight, distinctly larger and heavier than the average person of your height should be?

Just break through the mesmerism of your inertness, and, as you Americans says, "get busy."

First of all, don't tighten your clothes to hide your obesity, but loosen them a bit. Let the blood circulate freely, as it should through your body, transforming flabby fat to firm, self-sustaining muscle. Then you will find yourself able to breathe deeply, to walk and climb hills, to go through your energetic twenty minutes of morning exercise before your open window without disagreeable symptoms. Wear just the lightest clothing for your morning exercise.

Eat all you want—don't stint—but eat slowly and chew every morsel of food until you have obtained every bit of good from it. In this way you will find yourself satisfied with much less food than when you eat with nervous haste.

Also, eat at regular hours, not oftener than three times a day.

You will need to reduce your consumption of cream, butter, sweets, white bread, potatoes, fat meats, olive oil and fat fish to a minimum.

Banish them altogether for a while, if you can, until you are back to normal weight. If you feel you must have them, reduce their quantity to one-half or one-third what you have been eating.

Try lemonade between meals, instead of candy or sodas, and drink buttermilk in place of chocolate and cocoa, for a time. Permit yourself sweets only once or twice a week, in limited quantity, as a treat.

Celery, cucumbers, carrots, cauliflower, onions, tomatoes, lettuce, cottage cheese, oranges, apples, tea with lemon, black coffee, clear skimmed soups, dried beef, chicken without the skin, clam broth, gluten bread, bran muffins, grapefruit, pineapple, asparagus, watercress, cold slaw, peppers, grape juice, cabbage, strawberries, blackberries, watermelons, codfish, lean lamb, lean beef, spinach, peaches—you will be safe in selecteing your menus from these non-fattening foods. And how good they will taste when you are hungry!

Every morning work twenty minutes or more at your exercises. Those I have given, and shall continue to suggest in these little chats, will all tend to reduce your body to symmetry if you work at them with your whole strength. Then enjoy your tepid bath and rubdown. And never forget your hot bath at night.

Above all—it is even more important than exercise and diet—find work that you love, and keep absorbed in your work from morning until night. If your are busy now, get busier. Perfect yourself at your daily task and take up a new hobby as well—one that will contrast with your regular occupation. Find an outdoor hobby if you are an indoor worker and an indoor hobby if your work is all outdoors.

with life and conquered it, from first to last. Formidable creature!

An extraordinary achievement if true. But was it? Women, no matter how beautiful, wealthy, highly placed and powerfully organized, got the worst of it one way or another. When they fell in love they were apt to lose their heads, and with that the game. Technique crumbled. For a moment he imagined her in love, dissolved, helpless; then hastily changed the subject. He liked women to be strong—having long since abandoned his earlier ideal of the supine adorant—but not too strong.

Certainly not stronger than himself. He had meet a good many "strong" women in the last twelve years, swathed, more often than not, in disarming femininity. A man hadn't a chance with them, man's strength as a rule being all on the outside. Women grew up and men didn't. That was the infernal truth.

For the moment he hated all women and felt not only a cowardly but a decidedly boyish impulse to run away. He'd like to wander . . . wander . . . be out in the woods and dream as he had done in his boyhood . . . before he knew too much of life . . . reading Shelley and munching chestnuts. . . . Then he remembered that woods were full of snow in winter, and laughed. Well, he'd go and see Gora Dwight.

No Feminine Seduction

She was in Washington at the moment, but would be home on Friday. She was a tonic. Strong if you like, but making no bones about it. No soft feminine seductions there. She, too, had fought life and conquered, in a way, but she showed the scars. Must have had the devil of a time. At all events a man could spend hours in her stimulating company and know exactly where he stood. No damned sex nonsense about her at all. He knew barely another woman who didn't trail round to sex sooner or later. Psychoanalysis had relieved them of whatever decent inhibitions they might have had in the past. He hated the subject.

Some day he'd let go in his column and tell women in general what he thought of them. Remind them that men were their superiors in this at least: they kept sex in its proper place and were capable always of more than one idea at a time. So was Gora Dwight. He believed he'd make a confidante of her—to a certain extent. At all events he'd refresh his soul at that tranquil font.

Gora Dwight, after the fashion of other successful authors, had recently bought a house. It was in East Thirty-fifth street, not far from the one at present occupied by Madame Zattiany, but nearer Lexington avenue. It was one of the old monotonous brownstone houses, but with a "southern exposure," and the former owner had removed the front steps and remodeled the lower floor.

The dining-room, on the left of the entrance, was a long admirably proportioned room, and the large room above which embraced the entire floor, Miss Dwight had converted into a library both sumptuous and stately. She had bought her furniture at auction that it might not look too new, and on the longer walls were bookcases seven feet high. She had collected a small library before the war and for the many other books, some of them rare and all highly valued by their present possessor, she had hunted second-hand bookshops.

The prevailing tone of the room was brown and gold, enlivened discreetly with red, and the chairs and lounges were deep and comfortable. A large davenport stood before the fireplace, which had been rebuilt for logs. There was a victrola in one corner, for Miss Dwight was amenable if her guests were seized with the desire to jazz, and a grand piano stood near the lower windows. The only evidence of sheer femininity was a tea table furnished with old pieces of silver she had picked up in France. The dining-room below was a trifle gayer in effect; the walls and curtains were a deep yellow and there were always flowers on the table.

Nothing Further

New York knew so much about this new library planet that it took for granted there was nothing further to be discovered. There are always San Franciscans in the great city, and when she became famous they were obliging with their biographical data. Life had been hard on her at first, for although she came of old Revolutionary stock she grew up in poverty and obscurity. Her father had been a failure and after the death of her parents she had kept a lodging house for business women, taking courses at the University of California meanwhile; later she had studied nursing and made her mark with physicians and surgeons.

Austria must be saved at any cost, she decided

Her brother, a good-looking chap, with fine manners, but a sort of super-moron, had unexpectedly married into the old aristocracy of San Francisco, and Gora, through her sister-in-law, the lovely Alexina Groome, had seen something of the lighter side of life. During this period she had written a number or short stories that had been published in the best magazines, and one novel of distinction that had been a "howling success" in San Francisco, owing to the unprecedented efforts of the fashionable people led by young Mrs. Mortimer Dwight; but had fallen flat in the East in spite of the reviews. Then had come a long intermission when fictionists were of small account in a world of awful facts. .

She was quite forgotten, for she made not even a casual contribution to the magazines; shortly after the war broke out she offered her services to England and for long and weary years was one of the most valued nurses in the British armies. At the close of the war she had returned to California, intending to write her new novel at Lake Tahoe, but finding the season in full swing she had gone to some small interior town and written it there. When it was finished she had brought it on to New York and had remained here ever since.

Instant Fame

So ended the brief biography, which was elaborated in many articles and interviews.

As for the novel, it won her instant fame and a small fortune. It was gloomy, pessimistic, excoriating, merciless, drab, sordid, and hideously realistic. Its people hailed from that plebeian end of the vegetable garden devoted to turnips and cabbages. They possessed all the mean vices and weaknesses that detestable humanity has so far begotten. They were all failures and their pitiful aspirations were treated with biting irony. Futile, futile world!

The scene was laid in a small town in California, a microcosm of the stupidities of civilization and of the United States of America in particular. The celebrated "atmosphere" of the State was ignored. The town and the types were American"; it would seem that merely some unadmitted tenuous sentiment had set the scene in the State of the author's birth, but there the concession ended. Even the climate was treated with the scorn that all old clitches deserved. (Her biographers might have contributed the information that the climate of a California interior town in Summer is simply infernal).

Created Furore

Naturally, the book created a furore. A few years before it would have expired at birth, even had a publisher been mad enough to offer it to a smug contented world. But the daily catalogue of the horrors and the obscenities of war, the violent dislocations that followed with their menaces of panic and revolution that affected the nerves and the pockets of the entire commonwealth, the irritable reaction against the war itself, knocked romance, optimism, aspiration, idealism, the sane and balanced judgment of life, to smithereens.

More cliches. The world was rotten to the core and the human race so filthy the wonder was that any writer would handle it with tongs. But they plunged to their necks. The public, whose urges, inhibitions, complexes, were in a state of ferment, but inarticulate, found their release in these novels and stories and wallowed in them. The more insulting the more ruthless, the more one-sided the disclosure of their irremediable faults and meannesses, the more voluptuous the pleasure. There had been reactions after the Civil War, but on a higher plane. The population had not been maculated by inferior races.

Democratic Wave

The young editors, critics, special writers were enchanted. This was Life! At last! Moreover, it was Democracy. These young and able men, having renounced their earlier socialism, their sense of humor recognizing its disharmony with high salaries and pleasant living, were hot for Democracy. Nothing paid like Democracy in this heaving world.

The Democratic wave rose and roared. Symbolic was this violent eruption of small-town fiction, as realistic as the kitchen, as pessimistic as Wall Street. All virtue, all hope, all idealism, had gone out of the world. Romance, for that matter, never had existed and it was high time the stupid world was forcibly purged of its immemorial illusion. Life was and ever had been sordid, commonplace, ignoble, vulgar, immedicable; refinement was a cowardly veneer that was beneath any seeker after Truth, and Truth was all that mattered. Love was to laugh. Happiness was hysteria, and content the delusion of morons (a word now hotly racing "authentic"). As for those verbal criminals "loyalty" and "patriotism"—foolt vomiture.

Their success was colossal.

Gora Dwight caught the crest of the wave and sold three hundred thousand copies of "Fools." She immediately signed a contract with one of the "woman's magazines" for the serial rights of her next novel for thirty thousand dollars, and received a corresponding advance from her publisher. Her short stories sold for two thousand dollars apiece, and her first novel was exhumed and had a heavy sale.

It was difficult to be pessimistic with a hundred thousand dollars in bonds and mortgages and the deed of a house in her strong box, but Gora Dwight was an artist and could always fall back on technique. But although her book was the intellectual expression of wildly distorted complexes, owing to the disillusionments of war, the humiliation of her ego in woman's most disastrous adventure, and the consequent repression of all her dearest urges, she deserved her success far more than any of her adolescent rivals.

Complete Normalcy

She had formed her style in the days of complete normalcy, and not only was that style distinguished, vigorous, and individual, but she was able to convey her extremist realism so subtly and yet so unambiguously that she could afford to disdain the latrinities of the "younger school." A marvellous feat. Most of them used the frank vocabulary of the humble home, as alone synonymous with Truth. Never before had such words invaded the sacrosanct pages of American letters.

Little they recked, as Mr. Lee Clavering, who took the entire school as an obscene joke, pointed out that they were but taking the shortest cut—advantage of the post-war license affecting all classes—to save themselves the exhausting effort of acquiring a vocabulary and forming a style.

The spade as a symbol vanished from fiction.

Miss Dwight had her own ideals, little as she permitted her unfortunate characters to have any, and not only was she a consummate master of words and of the art of suggestion, but she had been brought up by finicky parents who held that certain words were not to be used in refined society. The impressions received in plastic years were not to be obliterated by any fad of the hour.

No one knew, not even her fellow Californians, that she had had a disastrous love affair which had culminated in an attempt to murder her beautiful sister-in-law. Her book had been a wild revulsion from every standard of her youth, and she loathed love and the harsh idea of mutual happiness in fellow mortals as she recently had loathed blood and filth and war and Germans.

A Great Healer

Success is a great healer. Moreover, she was a woman of strong and indomitable character, and very proud. She consigned the man, who, after all, was the author of her phenomenal success, to nethermost oblivion. You cannot sell three hundred thousand copies of a book, receive hundreds of letters from unknown admirers telling you that you are the greatest novelist living, see your name constantly in the "news," be besieged by editors and publishers, and become a popular favorite with Sophisticates, and carry around a lacerated heart. The past fades. The present reigns.

The future is rosy as the dawn. Gora Dwight was far too arrogant at this period of her career to love any man even had there been anything left of her heart but a pump. Her life was full to the brim. She was quite aware that the present rage for stark and dour realism would pass—the indications were to be seen in the more moderate but pronounced success of several novels by authors impervious to crazes—but she was too fertile for apprehension on that score.

She had many and quite different themes wandering like luminous ghosts about the corridors of a brain singularly free from labyrinths, ready to emerge, full-blooded, when the world was ready for them.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

By ANN LISLE.

"I'll not mortgage that," Pat cried.

"I've no cash and very little," confessed Jim, ruefully. "I can't take Cordova's money. Can't we telegraph Tony?"

"Don't know where he is," Pat answered.

Virginia turned accusing eyes on me.

"Your brother's gone," she said. "Sixty thousand dollars of—my husband's money has gone with him. Since you're in Pat's confidence, isn't there something you can do?"

"She's done the biggest thing of all—getting the option. No one else on earth could have done that," Pat cried warmly.

Virginia bridled.

"This is a remarkable family," she said ironically. "After the way things are mismanaged and bungled—after the way things vital to me are handled without consulting me—I think it's just as well, and only fair, that when it comes to a vital decision, I should make it."

We all stared at her, none of us having the slightest idea of what she meant.

"Well?" Jim asked irascibly.

"I took nurse and the baby out to Dreamwold this afternoon," she said challengingly. "Has anyone anything to say to that?"

Virginia and I stared at each other challengingly. Neither Pat nor Jim could guess what her declaration that she had seen Phoebe's baby out to Dreamwold meant to me. I was so angry that the walls of my living room seemed to be closing in and choking me.

"That isn't fair!" I managed at last. "You mean to say you've taken the baby?"

Virginia cut me short furiously:

"Are you trying to say that I've stolen the baby? That isn't a diplomatic thing for Neal Hyland's sister to suggest."

"Jeanie!" I gasped. I couldn't say anything more. And after I'd called her by the love-name Pat uses, I had a futile sense of rage because I hadn't found some way of holding her off by a name that disclaimed her.

"Jeanie, you mustn't get excited protested Jim.

Then Pat's voice sounded at its richest and softest.

"'Tis tired you are, Jeanie. To ride to Dreamwold and back was too much. But I'm thinking you were wise to get the bit of a baby out of the turmoil of Neal's little apartment and into the country. Now we'll have Anne coming to us regular-like while the baby stays."

"Anne's capable of stating that she'll never set foot on Dreamwold soil to—pay me for this," laughed Virginia maliciously. "But some one had to think of Phoebe's baby."

"I wanted her—" I confessed, refusing to let Virginia bait me. "Little Carol's doubly mine. Neal's baby—and Phoebe's"—

"Well, I should be inclined to say that Neal had forfeited all claim to the baby," began Virginia at her toploftiest.

Jim broke in sternly:

"I don't care to hear you say that, Virginia. There is nothing to be gained by judging the boy. [illegible] shock which has unsettled all of us, though we aren't as hideously close to it as he was."

WHAT THE STARS SAY

ALTHOUGH this promises to be a lively and eventful day, acording to the predominant planetary rulings, all of the figures may not be read as propitious.

While there may be some notable relief from an old obstacle or a long-congested condition, yet under an unfavorable position of Jupiter, immediate financial return from the clearing situation may not be expected. There is some menace of deceit, fraud or treachery, and there likewise is danger through quarrels or litigation which should be shunned.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

HOW HE CURED A THIEF.

"RUN, gather the eggs, Bobby," I said one morning when I came downstairs for breakfast.

"What's the trouble?" I asked.

"No eggs for breakfast, Foxy Grandpa," he answered.

"What do you mean, no eggs for breakfast? Have the hens gone on a strike?"

"Indeed they have not," he replied emphatically. "I heard them all cackling for dear life telling us proudly that each hen had laid a nice egg for us."

"Who do you suppose is stealing them?" I asked each morning, but we never were able to guess.

It took Bunny only one night to find that thief. For the next morning he walked in, with his ears pointing heavenward and his tail twitching with excitement. I knew he had a surprise for us when he said:

"I've found him! It's a big chicken hawk. The hens are nearly out of their minds for fear he will eat them, because every morning he goes into that henhouse and helps himself to the eggs, and they are afraid that he will get tired of omelets and scrambled eggs and decide to have a chicken dinner some day. They run away so fast when they hear him and make such a racket that he hasn't bothered them yet!"

"That gives me an idea, Bunny. I'll give that hawk a silent hen that can't run to try his luck on," said I.

"Where are you going to find such a curiosity?" Bunny asked doubtfully.

"When cook dresses that hen we're going to have with dumplings for dinner, I'll tell her to skin the hen, feathers and all, and give me the skin," I exclaimed. "I'll fix Mr. Hawk."

The next morning early we all got up, hid in the chicken house and watched.

Sure enough, up in the sky we soon saw a moving speck. It came nearer and nearer, and grew larger and larger, until we saw old Mr. Hawk ready to alight. Suddenly, his keen eyes fell on our hen. He gave one big swoop and pounced on her. Snap, went the trap, and such growls and shrieks of anger you never heard as that hawk let out!

"Now, Mr. Hawk, will you be good?" I asked as I loosened the trap, for I had no idea of keeping him captive.

Tan, Red or Freckled Skin Is Easily Shed

Use Ordinary Mercolized Wax

To free your summer-soiled skin of its muddiness, freckles, blotches or tan, the best thing to do is to free yourself of the skin itself. This is easily accomplished by the use of ordinary Mercolized Wax, which of course can be had at any drug store. Use at night as you use cold cream, washing it off in the morning. Immediately the offending surface skin begins to come off in fine powder-like particles. Gradually the entire outer scarf skin is absorbed, without the least harm or inconvenience. The second layer of skin now in evidence presents a spotless whiteness and sparkling beauty attainable in no other way. One ounce of Mercolized Wax usually is sufficient to completely renovate a bad complexion.

SPAGHETTI RECIPES

New England housewives are now given a chance to win six packages of Mueller's delicious spaghetti by sending in recipes for the best way of cooking appetizing dishes of spaghetti or egg noodles. For each recipe printed here six packages will be sent. Address Spaghetti Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street.

Spaghetti With Grape Sauce

Break ½ package Mueller's spaghetti into small pieces. Boil until tender and the water is nearly boiled away. Do not drain, but pour into individual pudding moulds with the water in which it was boiled, which is very little. Let stand until cold and firm. Boil 1 pint of grapes until tender and put them through the colander to remove seeds and skins. Then measure the pulp. One-half cup of boiling water is enough to boil the grapes. Add 1 cup of granulated sugar, and cook a few minutes, being careful the grape pulp does not burn. Stand aside to cool. When ready to serve remove the spaghetti from the moulds to a serving dish and pour the grape juice around it. The grape should be thick like a sauce. This makes a pudding.

MRS. E. H. PERLEY.

North Windham, Ct.

French Baked Spaghetti

One package Mueller's spaghetti, 1 can of tomatoes, ¼ pound of common cheese grated, 1 pint of milk, 3 pork chops, 2 small onions, 1 small pinch red pepper, cinnamon, clove, 1 small tablespoon of salt. Break the spaghetti in small pieces and cook 20 minutes. Keep stirring to keep from burning, then drain. In a separate dish cook the tomatoes 10 minutes. Fry the pork chops and onions together until a nice brown. Then remove the bones and cut chops fine. Then add all together, stirring well. Bake slowly in baking dish nearly 3 hours.

IN ADDRESSING THE BALL, KEEP THE EYES CLOSED TIGHTLY AND THINK OF NOTHING IN PARTICULAR.
IN BRINGING THE CLUB UP FOR THE BACK SWING, THE EYES ARE GLUED EITHER ON THE CLUB HEAD OR ON A DOLL WHO HAPPENS TO BE PASSING.
THIS PICTURE SHOWS THE TOP OF THE SWING - THE RIGHT FOOT IS WELL OFF THE GROUND AND THE EYES ARE FOCUSSED ON THE SKY.
IT IS ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY FOR THE CAP TO FLY OFF ON THE DOWNWARD SWING - THIS GIVES CADDIE SOMETHING TO PICK UP.
THE END OF THE SWING - BRING THE HEAD UP QUICKLY AND BEND NECK AS FAR BACK AS POSSIBLE WITHOUT BREAKING IT.
MOST IMPORTANT PART OF SHOT - LOOK FOR BALL AND, IF IT HASN'T MOVED, "MISS-SHOT" HAS BEEN COMPLETELY SUCCESSFUL.
FOOLISH QUESTIONS - No. 77,685.
O, DID YOU MISS IT?
NO, THE HOLE IS SUPPOSED TO JUMP UP AND CHASE AFTER THE BALL

Remember the Time--

By Jack Casey

YER saw yer first balloon assension at a country fair an' how excited yer was? An' the time yer carried water for the elephants when the circus come in an' Tom McManus, who was with yer after carryin' about twenty pails from a creek a mile away finally decided he had picked a camel by mistake.

Ball players weren't paid fortunes an' was generally found in the hotel bar or outside sittin' with tilted chairs on the sidewalk of the hotel they lived at while a bunch o' kids stood by an' marvelled at their greatness.

Somebody started wearin' a monogram on his shirt sleeve an' it immediately became a fad an' spread like wild fire. There was only one kind of a belt an' that had a buckle, just like a belt on a hoss blanket an' nobody had discovered the kind men wear nowadays with ther monograms on an' no holes necessary to hold it close to their slim or ample girths.

Yer had arguments for hours with members of the gang on whether Sir Thomas Lipton's cup defenders had a chance an' yer was especially sure the Columbia would knock the stuffins' out of his Shamrock. And it did.

Bell hops didn't have fancy uniforms an' telegraph boys only carried telegrams an' didn't run into the eighties in age. A grocer would deliver an yeast cake an' charge anything. Ice cream wagons was fancy an' the horse hauling one generally had a sleigh bell ring around his middle which jingled deliciously when you had a nickel to buy a box of the coooling mixture, but sadly when yer was broke, which was 364 out of every 365 days in the year. If yer saved twenty of the tin ice cream spoons yer could get a box for nothin'. The first nineteen was the hardest.

No Summer was complete without a lawn party an' yer always made yerself handy on the grounds at the church, so's yer could make a little dough to treat yourself. Yer pestered yer Ma to let you go barefoot an' howled when yer stepped off the cool grass onto a hot tar sidewalk. Rowboats only cost ten cents an hour, three hours for a quarter. But yer Ma forbid yer to enter one.

Somebody wrote a song called "Lookout Yer Rockin' the Boat," an' everybody whistled it. Yer used to have strength tests by getting a weight out of an idle buggy an' seein' how many different ways yer could lift it. If yer could do it with yer teeeth yer was considered a Sandow. Yer had the toothache an' did yer own extracting by tieing the tooth with a string attached to a door, shuttin' yer eyes an' suddenly openin' the door. Then yer buried the tooth deep lest a dog find it an' yer have a dog's tooth grow in its place.

REMEMBER?
I'LL SAY YER DO.

The boxing fans will be treated to a whole evening of slugging, fighting and some more fighting. It is best for the fans to bring lunches for, as the entries are coming in, it will be midnight before the finals are finished.

The committee has sent invitations to His Honor the Mayor and the whole city [illegible] also to Representatives [illegible] Winslow and [illegible] the show will be a Fore River [illegible] show, and this speaks for itself.

The Fore River Club and all its representatives, whether in sports or otherwise, are known for their [illegible] backing of anything that they tackle.

Those wishing to enter can do so by sending blanks to P. J. Maley, Fore River Club.

Walker Tells How to Score Knockout

By MICKEY WALKER

My knockout punch in any fight will be one of these four blows:

A right hand punch over the heart.

It is my aim to put every opponent on the defense. I think that I can handle their offense all right if I just keep [illegible] at them. [illegible] enough. A good defense is the best offense.

I think [illegible] effort of mine puts fear into [illegible] opponent, a thing which helps to win the fight.

The newspapers have led me to believe that this offensive style of mine is characteristic to me. I think there are other fighters who appreciate the value of this style too. It not only leads a fighter to victory but protects him from disfiguring [illegible]

I have tried to combine boxing and fighting.

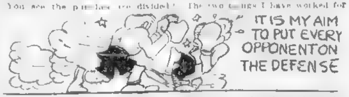
My manner is to punch my foe around until he is so fatigued that he lets down his defense, and when he does this I land my K. O.

The two things I have worked for have been speed and punching ability.

My manager, John Bulger, has taken an original view of training that I must say I am thankful for. He believes in letting a man do just what he wants to do. Between [illegible] times I am absolutely free and live like the ordinary man does. My manager says:

"Show me the man that goes to bed every night at 9 o'clock and lives strictly by training rules all the time, and I will show you a man who is not a success. He will grow stale. It is the same thing over and over—monotony."

Between bouts I lay off. I do nothing but play. I do a great deal of dancing, stay out very late sometimes, sleep late if I want to. My manager keeps nothing from me. Then when I am called in to work, I want to and jump right into it again.



IT IS MY AIM TO PUT EVERY OPPONENT ON THE DEFENSE

I DO A GREAT DEAL OF DANCING

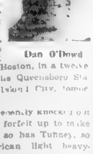
These are Isbell, the two-miler, and Schmidt, hammer thrower. All others who made points at the Chicago meet will be available to Coach Steve Farrell next season.

TUNNEY TO RISK TITLE IN BOUT WITH O'DOWD



Dan O'Dowd

Gene Tunney, America's light heavyweight champion, who has persistently challenged without response Mike McTigue for a crack at the world's title, will defend his championship crown against Dan O'Dowd, of Boston, in a twelve round bout at the Queensboro Stadium in Long Island City, tomorrow evening.

O'Dowd, who recently knocked out Al Reich, has a forfeit up to make the weight, and so has Tunney, so that the American light heavyweight championship will be at stake. Benny Leonard, [illegible] of Tunney, has taught [illegible] heavyweight many fine [illegible] game, and when [illegible] through the ropes next Tuesday night he will be a revelation to the fans.

But two defeats in twelve years of boxing is the proud record of Terry Martin. Few boxers, other than the recognized champions, can boast of such a showing.

JIM WRAY MAY RETURN TO HARVARD AS ROWING COACH

CUTLER AIDED BY WRAY IS TALK AT CAMBRIDGE

Barklie McK. Henry, captain-elect of the Harvard crew, returned to Cambridge for the first time since the varsity left in June for Red Top to prepare for the races with Yale. It may be only a coincidence, but Richard A. Glendon, former head coach of the Naval Academy crews, was also in Boston at the time, having returned from Cuba, where he was coaching the Independentia Club crews. It could not be learned at the H. A. A., which Henry visited, whether a conference between the two men was held.

Glendon, even from the very start, disliked Cuba. The climate did not agree with him, his material was the poorest and lightest of any Cuban organization, and other conditions were not of the best.

He only had one crew in action, a junior four-oared shell which finished fourth in the only regatta held so far in [illegible], and his men were nearly seven lengths behind the leaders. He [illegible] the [illegible] of the summer at his home in Chatham.

Glendon [illegible] that he be the [illegible] with the approval of [illegible] or members of the [illegible] committee, so the [illegible] ed out of the [illegible] by many followers of Harvard rowing.

It was learned yesterday that there is talk of James S. Wray returning to Harvard in the Fall, but on the surface this seems unlikely.

CUTLER A SUCCESS AS AN OARSMAN.

The report is that Roger W. Cutler, captain of the 1911 crew, and stroke in 1909 and 1910, who rowed in three four-mile victories over Yale, will serve as head coach, and Wray be associated with him. Wray coached at Harvard for eleven years, first taking hold in 1905. His crew won seven out of eleven races against Yale, and was able to develop short distance crews that [illegible] to hold their own against other [illegible]. He developed crews that defeated the United States Naval Academy eights three out of four times, and the year of his retirement not only helped [illegible] to defeat the middies, but also Cornell.

MUMFORD A BOOSTER FOR JIM WRAY.

George S. Mumford, [illegible] the present Harvard rowing [illegible] mittee, thinks highly of Wray's ability as a coach. Writing of Harvard crews in the [illegible], Mr. Mumford said:

[illegible] race was a victory for [illegible] with it ended Wray's connection with Harvard crews. He had been coach for eleven years. Harvard's record during that [illegible] had been distinguished by [illegible] a generally high standard [illegible] Morgan '16, the captain of the '16 crew, decided after considerable [illegible] that a very thorough [illegible] that Wray's usefulness [illegible]. His work had been [illegible] successful than [illegible] of any coach Harvard had ever [illegible] to dispense with [illegible].

[illegible] chairman of the [illegible] crew when Wray coached [illegible] Yale, as well as [illegible] Naval Academy and Cornell. With all the crews he coached Wray won thirteen and lost sixteen races. Cornell's Courtney coached crew being the [illegible] stumbling block in his path, with only two victories out of eleven races.

Henry did not visit the Harvard boat houses. He came from Newport, where his engagement was recently announced to the daughter of Harry Payne Whitney, a Yale graduate and prominent in Yale rowing affairs.

Real Cy Young Shows Them How He Did It

Cleveland, O., July 30.—Cy Young showed that he had lost none of his cunning as a pitcher for a team of old timers of the Cleveland major league clubs of yesteryear against the old Sandlotters of this city. He struck out two men and allowed only one hit in the two innings he was on the mound. He also got one of his side's five hits.

The game, a five-inning exhibition for the benefit of the medical protective fund of the Cleveland Amateur Baseball and Athletic Association, intended to be used in the event of injuries to sandlotters and umpires, was attended by approximately 20,000 persons. The Sandlotters won, 6 to 4.

Nap Lajoie got a two-bagger.

Other former major leaguers participating included Earl Moore, no hit pitcher, who was Cleveland's ace 20 years ago; Charley Smith, Homer Davidson, Larry Twitchell, Charley Hickman, Red Carney, Nick Altrock and Jack Graney.

The youngest player in the game was 42 and the oldest 62.

R. H. WHITE OUT FOR GAMES

R. H. White team, Retail League leaders, and champions for 1921 and 1922, are now ready to play the strongest semi-pro clubs desiring a good attraction for Saturday and Sunday games away from home. 500 FLEE FIRE IN BEACH MOVIE HOUSE

Wells Beach, Me., July 30.—Five hundred persons fled a fire in the motion picture theatre at Island Lake Casino which was caused by an explosion of the projection machine. Ernest Fluey, the operator, was slightly burned, but the fire was extinguished before the fire department arrived. Loss was estimated at $600.

MURCHISON SIGNS FOR WILCO GAMES

New York, July 30.—The receipt yesterday of the entry of Loren Murchison, national champion and world's record holder for 60 yards, assures the Wilco A. A. of having one of the finest sprint fields that has ever started in a race in New York City for their pre-Olympic games at the Yankee Stadium, on September 8.

Loren Murchison

Hugh H. Hirshon, chairman of the Wilco A. A. [illegible] committee, said last night that he has already received the entries of H. F. V. Edward of England, winner of the 100, 200 and 440 yards races in the British championships last year; Bob McAllister, present American champion at 100 yards; Eugene Goodwillie, the sensational schoolboy sprinter of Chicago; Alfred Leconey, present American 220-yard champion; A. HARRY WILLS IS PASSED UP BY DEMPSEY

By JACK CONWAY

Harry Wills, great negro [illegible] [illegible] instead [illegible] signed for a contest with [illegible] September 14 and this puts a Wills [illegible] on the shelf for this year.

A Dempsey-Wills contest would naturally be staged in the open air. Therefore, if Jack were to battle the great negro challenger the contest would have to [illegible] October 12 at the [illegible] September [illegible] not very [illegible] Wills [illegible] Day.

Baseball and other sports are feeling the effects made by the increased popularity of boxing. When a man pay $10 to $15 for a seat at a boxing show he has not a great deal of money left for other amusement.

• • •

Prices for important bouts have been reduced in line with the Boston American's campaign. Ringside seats at the Dundee-Criqui contest were only $10. This should be the top figure for any boxing show even though a world's title [illegible] at stake.

• • •

It is interesting to read some of the stories published in Boston and New York about the proposed bout between Benny Leonard and Mickey Walker. These champions are already matched and forfeits have been posted as revealed in an exclusive story in the Boston American last Monday. This writer gained this information from a man who saw the money deposited in the hands of the stakeholder and the articles of agreement signed.

The latter gentleman is one of the most popular individuals connected with the public life of the State of New Jersey. The bout between the two champions will take place in New Jersey. The chances are it won't be held at Boyle's Thirty Acres, as neither Billy Gibson [illegible] or Jack Bulger [illegible] of Walker have any desire to cut Tex Rickard in on the profits of a show which was [illegible].

It would not be good policy to announce the Leonard-Walker bout now as the fans might then get the idea that the White match billed for next month, was merely a workout for Leonard.

• • •

Dundee has been a credit to the boxing game. He has never taken part in a shady bout. He always has given the fans the best he has had. Now that the little Italian has proved he can make 126 pounds and still be strong, he should have a long reign as featherweight king. We do not know of a featherweight who is capable of even making things interesting for Dundee. The latter also possess the ability to defeat most of our lightweights.

[illegible] New York [illegible] in boxing in Boston. The Shade-Jones bout drew $9,500, which was a large money house for a warm night. A tussle between the same men over again would attract a $15,000 gate [illegible] Jones or Shade.

MR. GALLAGHER and MR. SHEAN

THE Boston American awards each week an original Gallagher & Shean drawing to the reader who sends in the best Gallagher & Shean lyric.

One is selected for publication in this column every day, and on Saturday the selection of the best one is made and a drawing is mailed the winner.

Today's selection, which will be one of the six from which the winner will be decided, is by W. B. Jennings, No. 51 Ashland street, Melrose Highlands, Mass.

"Oh, Mr. Gallagher, say eMr. Gallagher,
Do you know I am a flivver owner now?
As I speed along the street
In my motor car so fleet
I feel almost like a millionaire, I'll vow."

"Oh, Mr. Shean, dear Mr. Shean,
You're a lucky bird, that's plainly to be seen.
With a motor car, no doubt
'Twill be easy to get out——"
"Out of town, dear Mr. Gallagher?"
"Out of gas, dear Mr. Shean!"

Have a Smile With Us

By Nat N. Dorfman.

THE fellow who used to be born with a silver spoon in his mouth is now most likely born with a radio headpiece attached to his ears.

It seems American grocers invariably read the newspapers when the prices on foodstuffs go up, but they very conveniently neglect to buy a paper when there's a report in it of a big decline.

A lot of people who claim they want a voice in the government, according to some of the laws they suggest, seem to confuse it with having a vice in the government.

We met an old-fashioned girl the other day. We knew she was old-fashioned because she thought it improper to attend the theatre with a young man without a chaperone.

Hysterical Note.

Historians who tell us Croesus was the richest man in his time fail to mention he got that way because he refused to fall for the alluring advertisements in the monthly magazines describing the splendor and luxuriant beauties of an expensive automobile. He stuck to walking and riding in the street cars and amassed a fortune.

New leases drawn up by New York landlords place everything on the shoulders of the tenants. The only thing landlords are to do in the future is to collect the rents. The crushing and final blow won't come, however, until the landlords force the tenants to invite them home to dinner.

In Weather There Is Unity

When Summer comes and takes its seat
Among us, we complain of heat;
When Winter's chilly blasts unfold,
We talk of nothing but the cold.
It seems we all can get together
And come to terms about the weather.

Yes and No

Yes, Mathilde, brook in French is feminine gender. That is why the poet undoubtedly called it "the babbling brook."

No, Marcus, you can't get the last word in an argument with a woman—that is, not unless you knock her unconscious.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

A WELL known physician says the thing that's troubling most of the people in this country today is egotism. Ego is a disease that will cause a man to look into a mirror and then send his mother a telegram congratulating her.

ONE guy was so crazy about himself that when he had his photographs taken he ordered them printed on both sides of the paper.

HE was born on the same day as George Washington, but he thinks it's his birth that we celebrate every year.

ANOTHER bird was so conceited that he wouldn't even talk to himself.

HE stands all day in front of a looking glass and pinches himself. He imagines he's too good to be true.

HE had a statue made of himself and put in the park so that he could go out there every week and decorate it with flowers.

SO far he has remained single. He could make one girl happy, but he doesn't want to make millions of others sad.

HIS birth certificate says he's twenty-eight, but he doesn't believe it. He can't see how anything so good as he is could possibly last that long.

THE Y. W. C. A. held a parade one morning and he thought the women were following him.

HE always walks sideways along the boulevard so that the people across the street can see him, too.

HE'S so particular about the part in his hair, that he wears a hat when he takes a shower bath.

A burglar broke into his room one night and this guy kept him there three hours talking about himself.

FINALLY the burglar got rude and walked out on him.

ANOTHER fellow was so satisfied with his looks that he held a beauty contest and gave himself the prize.

HE was taken ill in front of a rooming house one day and asked a pedestrian to carry him over to the steps of the Waldorf before he called a doctor.

THIS same guy was so fond of hearing himself talk that he traveled all the way over to Switzerland and spent six months in the Alps listening to his own echo.

HE'S not a coward but he fears death. He's afraid to die because he knows there's nobody on earth who could take his place.

FOR BETTER SERVICE ALLOW EMPLOYEES FREE EXPRESSION OF THOUGHT.

Perhaps your position allows you to dictate and insist upon certain things, and what you say must be done as if it were always right.

There never existed a man or a woman whose every thought and command was right every time from a Christian or a utilitarian standpoint.

There never lived but one faultless man. No one has the temerity to put himself on an equal footing with Him.

Can you think of a single other man whose judgment you would take above all others?

Then why do you expect your judgment to be taken without question at all times.

You might learn a lot if you would listen to the other fellow a while.

Why not allow the man under you to have free expression at least.

If you are so positive all the time and give no consideration whatever to things which the other fellow says, you are not going to get the best out of the man who knows that you look upon his judgment with scorn.

A man likes to feel that his ideas are worthy of thought, even if they are not adopted by the men higher up. Free expression of thought leads to greater success when men are interested in results.

Heavy Liquidation Forces U. S. Steel and Other Leaders to Fresh Lows

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Reports from industrial and mercantile circles are somewhat more encouraging.

Agricultural developments are not heartening.

And Wall Street's professional bears on Friday attacked stock quotations so viciously that they succeeded in precipitating a sharp break, particularly in oil and railway shares.

That summarizes the week's main developments.

* * *

The encouraging news concerning symptoms of improving demand in various industries is of more moment, or more importance, than Wall Street's latest bearish outburst. But the newspapers, particularly in the East, have devoted more attention to the raid of stocks than to the various signs of incipient betterment in business. "What's the matter?" has been the principal question.

Replies have varied. Some harp upon the latest drop in marks, to below $1 for one million marks. Others emphasized the appointment of a receiver for a relatively small railroad—a matter of no national significance. Still others signalled out the tremendous overproduction of oil as the chief cause of the market's break.

The truth is probably that responsible interests were more disturbed by the breaking-off of negotiations between coal operators and the coal miners on Friday than by any other development of that day. The public had been encouraged by high authorities to expect an agreement at the Atlantic City conferences. The disturbing news, therefore, came as a shock. It was immediately concluded that a coal strike would have a most unsettling effect under existing conditions.

The bears were quick to act and to act aggressively. Unquestionably their selling was augmented by liquidation from more important sources. In a midsummer market as dull as we have recently experienced, it does not take any tremendous amount of either selling or buying to cause an immediate and fairly pronounced move in quotations.

* * *

It was entirely natural that the disturbances in the stock market should lead to similar happenings in the grain and cotton market. To my mind, the recent weakness in wheat, in cotton, and in some other agricultural commodities, is a more serious matter than Wall Street's latest bearish fireworks.

* * *

Nevertheless, there are at least mild indications that we are entering a period of general business recovery. Also, I find that sentiment in high places is becoming more hopeful. Concrete evidences of this change are not yet numerous, nor are they at all spectacular. But it can be sensed and discerned.

* * *

How far it will go cannot be foretold. I am inclined to think, however, that within the next two months it will have become sufficiently potent to exercise a helpful influence upon wheat, upon cotton, upon copper, upon retail trade, upon general business. In which case, it can scarcely fail to have a constructive influence upon the stock market.

* * *

Reading between the lines, one cannot but feel that extremely important developments are near at hand in Europe. Germany's plight, regardless of how much or how little her governmental authorities have been blameworthy for bringing it about, is nearing the crisis stage. Berlin realizes that decisive steps must be taken, and taken quickly. France is still putting forward a very bold front, but it is more than possible that the firm attitude being taken by Britain will have a telling influence, especially as France's own position in the Ruhr and in her own industries is becoming more and more disagreeable.

Momentous events impend, and the outcome is more liely to be hopeful than harmful to this country as well as to the general European situation.

* * *

At home two tendencies are worth noting.

One has been the slackening of the downward movement in the average price level.

The other is the marked falling off in the number of wage advances, accompanied by abatement of the labor scarcity which not so long ago was exciting alarm.

* * *

Let merchants and others reach the conclusion that prices have definitely turned upwards, or even ceased to decline, and the likelihood is that we would witness an inrush of orders in a great many lines. The latest statistics reveal that department store stocks have been allowed to run down considerably, and it can be safely assumed that in many other directions inventories are today below normal. Consequently it would not take much to spread nervousness among those short of supplies, and as manufacturers have been refraining from piling up unordered goods, the appearance of a buying movement could have pronounced consequences.

* * *

For the moment events in the coal industry may arrest attention and prove unsettling. But the American public is not in a mood to submit once more to any high-handed action by either mine owners or miners. Hence, this source of unsettlement should shortly be removed. Railway wage demands loom on the horizon and may also exercise some effect upon sentiment.

* * *

Let me repeat, however, that if the faint symptoms of revival in business activity and in sentiment become unmistakable, the chances are that encouraging developments will become numerous enough and important enough to offset and even eclipse the unfavorable phases of the situation which are now almost monopolizing attention.

RAILS, OILS AND STEELS UNDER PRESSURE

A fresh burst of liquidation, considerable of which was traceable to margin calls, upset the whole list on the New York Stock Exchange during the first half of the session. Oils, steels and rails were hit the hardest, and in these groups many new lows for the year were uncovered.

The center of the bear attack and the attending liquidation was in U. S. Steel. The big corporation shares slumped a large fraction until they hung at 86½. This was the lowest mark in 1923.

Boston prices for the current 12-months were found in Norfolk & Western, Gulf States Steel, Crucible Steel, California Petroleum, Great Northernr preferred, Northern Pacific, Producers & Refiners, Texas Co., Cosden Oil, St. Paul preferred, Houston Oil, Standard Oil of California, International Harvester new, American Sugar and a number of other prominent offerings.

The market was quite active in the decline and bears found it easy to depress one group after another. The illness of President Harding together with the present economic situation gave them all the pretexes they needed for the brisk selling.

One of the most important forward movements was in Willys-Overland preferred. The shares strengthened four points to 70, the highest level hit this year.

Large losses were made by Canadian Pacific, May Department Stores, Brown Shoe, American Car & Foundry, Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake & Ohio preferred, Allied Chemical and Sears, Roebuck.

Wall St. Gossip

ROBERT GAIN CO. business, it is understood, has been running at an annual rate of approximately $18,000,000.

OWENS Bottle net profits (including subsidiaries) for six months ended June 30 were $2,238,303, against $1,929,153 in the first half of 1922.

MIAMI Copper, as of June 30, had approximately $10 per share in net current assets and owed no money.

CINCINNATI Northern report for 1922 closes a drop in net income for the year of $297,236. After payment of dividends there remained a surplus of $175,251 as compared with $412,488 at the end of 1921.

BALTIMORE & Ohio after all requirements, including fixed charges and preferred dividends earned $5.30 a share for the common stock in the six months ended June 30.

HUPP Motor annual dividend requirements of about $578,000 of both preferred and common stocks were earned nearly three times over in the first six months of this year, it is reported.

SEARS, Roebuck & Co. will retire the last $16,907,900 of its 7 per cent. serial gold notes at maturity, October 15, from cash without any new financing. Original issue amount of $50,000,000, was issued in October, 1920.

SHELL Union Oil earnings for 1923 are expected to be $4 a share after all charges including depreciation and depletion.

SEABOARD Air Line reports for June, net after adjustment bond interest, etc., $51,116, against deficit $88,821 in June, 1922.

U. S. EMBASSY HUNTS NEW HOME IN PARIS

Paris, July 30. — The American embassy is still looking about Paris in an endeavor to buy a home for the ambassador, with offices, as provided for in a congressional appropriation granted about six months ago. Something new is offered every week and it is understood plans and offers enough to fill a portfolio have accumulated, but nothing really serviceable or available within the $200,000 limit has been received.

INTERSTATE BONDS FIND GOOD MARKET

Public offering is being made of an issue of $7,192,000 of six per cent first preferred and refunding mortgage gold bonds of the Interstate Public Service Co. The bonds are priced at 92½ to yield 6.70 p. c. They mature in 1948 and are secured by a first mortgage on gas, electric and water properties of the company which serves more than 100 communities in Indiana.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC TO CUT FREIGHT RATES

Washington, July 30.—A qualified permission to reduce freight rates from New York City to the Southern Pacific Coast section by about 14 per cent. on shipments routed via boat to Texas ports and thence by rail over the Sunset-Gulf route, was given the Southern Pacific Railroad system today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Replies to Investors

(Send inquiries on investments to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass. Enclose stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.)

BE CONSERVATIVE, to F. W. H., Hingham — Conservative investment for a man of your circumstances would demand that you consider security of principal before high yield. You should protect your capital first and then discern what income you may get from securities affording the proper protection. If you buy $1,000 each Northern Pacific refunding and improvement 5s, 2047; Illinois Bell Telephone first and refunding 5s, 1956, and New England Telephone & Telegraph first 5s, 1952, you will get a yield of around 5¼ per cent. What is more important, or should be, is that you will have three of the best bonds issued in recent years.

KANSAS CITY SOUTHERN, to V. E. T., Plymouth—Speculation is assuming a big risk. Kansas City Southern is a speculation, not an investment. It has a par value of $100. No dividends have been paid on the common. The company has paid 4 per cent. annually on its preferred shares for fifteen years. Earnings have been enough for this, but not for common dividends.

Southen Pacific has been paying 6 per cent. on its capital stock for fifteen years. A study of its income accounts for ten years reveals that in only one year of that period did it draw on its surplus to pay the dividend. This was in 1920. In every other year of the last decade its dividends were earned amply. To get 6.80 per cent. on a stock like this is bold, we think. We do not offer the suggestion with a view to promising advances in price. That would be absurd, but one-twentieth of your capital in this stock will not mean you are taking too great a risk.

BABY BONDS.

To S. B. N., Commonwealth ave:—(1) For the investment of approximately $850 of your organization's money we suggest one each of the following $100 bonds: Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s, Missouri, Kansas & Texas prior lien 5s, Northern Pacific 5s, Colorado & Southern 4½s, Great Northern Railway 5½s, Denver Gas 5s, Montana Power 5s, New York Telephone 6s and Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s. These nine bonds, all listed and active, all high grade, may be obtained for approximately $825 plus accrued interest. Annual interest amounts to $46 or better than 5½ per cent. Unfortunately not a few dealers in "baby" bonds do charge an unfair premium or brokerage. We have selected these bonds from a list furnished by a big banking house which handles "baby" bonds on a very close margin. The name of the firm has been forwarded to you by mail. (The name and address will be supplied to any other reader upon request.) (2) We see no reason to induce a sale of Southern Pacific or Atchison. The highly satisfactory earnings of these two big railway systems are convincing evidence that their respective dividends are in no jeopardy. The relatively small declines are unimportant and significant of no danger.

Decline Halts in Commodity Prices

Commodity prices advanced a fraction again last week and the value of the dollar dropped slightly. This is the second time the last two weeks that commodity prices have not moved in a downward direction.

The dollar has the same purchasing power as 65.1 cents in 1913, according to the index number of general prices, compiled by Irving Fisher. Last week's price of 65.1 cents compares with 65.2 cents the week before.

The peak of high prices was reached in May, 1920, when a dollar bought only as much as 40.5 cents in 1913. Then, as prices fell, the dollar rose. In January, 1922, the dollar purchased the same amount of commodities as 72.6 before the war, and on January 3 last, 65 cents.

Dividend Declarations

Loew's Boston Theatres declared quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. on common, payable August 15, stock of record August 4.

Scotten Dillon Co. declared extra dividend of 2 per cent. and quarterly 3 per cent dividend, payable August 13, stock of record August 1.

J. G. Brill Co. declared dividend of $1.25 con common, payable September 1, stock of record August 24.

LOEW'S BOSTON THEATRES CO.

A dividend of one per cent (1%) has been declared on the Common Stock of Loew's Boston Theatres Company, payable on August 15, 1923, to stockholders of record as of August 4, 1923. LOEW'S BOSTON THEATRES COMPANY, by M. DOUGLAS FLATTERY, Managing Director.

AID IS NEEDED BY GROWERS OF WHEAT

New York, July 30.—The recent sharp decline in the price of wheat has furnished an outstanding example of the hardships which lack of balance in the commodity price structure entails, states the current issue of The Guranty Survey.

In this instance, not only is the depression of the value of wheat a major factor in the general economic situation, but the discontent engendered is reflected in various schemes for relief which could only prove futile or mischievous," it continued.

"What is needed in the framing of policies and measures for the relief of the producers of wheat is frank recognition of the conditions which have made necessary a post-war readjustment of the producing activities of farmers, as well as of other producers in this country.

"There can be no doubt that the American wheat growers as a body are in a very unfavorable position.

"With wheat selling around a dollar a bushel and the farm prices about 80 cents it appears that without a material advance in prices a considerable part of this year's wheat crop may be sold for less than it cost to grow it. And, while the price of wheat has been falling, other prices as a whole, have been rising until very recently.

"A basic re-adjustment either of relative demand or of production is called for. Anything that may be done to accelerate the processes of general economic recovery in Europe, with consequent revival of demand there for foreign foodstuffs, would afford a measure of durable relief for wheat growers in this countr.""

EARNINGS LARGE FOR EQUIPMENTS

The six months ended June 30 were best in history of the equipment industry. Some companies reported larger profits during the war but these accrued from the manufacture of munitions. Locomotive companies are enjoying the greatest prosperity.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

A Dividend of two per cent ($1.00 per share) on the COMMON Stock of this Company, for the quarter ending June 30, 1923, will be paid July 31, 1923, to stockholders of record as of June 30, 1923.

H. F. BAETZ, Treasurer.

New York, June 22, 1923.

SHARP BREAK IN MANY BOSTON OFFERINGS

Following the trend in New York prices were reactionary during the early stages of the market on the Boston Stock Exchange. Several sharp breaks appeared in the list. A moderate amount of forced selling was reported.

The softness of Eastern Steamship was one of the noteworthy features. A decline of 1 points carried the quotation to 70½, the lowest mark of the year. This compares with a 1923 high of 127½.

Island Creek Coal common relinquished 1 points to 99⅝. U. S. Smelting common tumbled nearly 3 points to 23. Pond Creek Pocahontas was a point softer at 14.

Amoskeag common, Quincy and Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway trust certificates were each a point easier.

Ventura, United Shoe common, New Haven, Hardy Coal, Swift & Co., Warren Bros. common and John T. Connor all dipped fractionally.

American Telephone and Calumet & Hecla were both slightly higher.

TAYLOR STORE OFFERS PERIOD FURNITURE

The Taylor Furniture Company has opened a new store at No. 770 Washington street, which is one of the best appointed in New England. It occupies four stories and has a total floor space of 35,000 square feet.

The company will specialize in period furniture as the following statement, issued in connection with the opening, explains:

"The Taylor Furniture Company feels that Boston needs a furniture store which is a stepping stone between the store which sells cheap merchandise and the one which sells only the most expensive furniture to the wealthy.

FOR BETTER HOMES.

"Our motto is 'Better Furniture for Better Homes.' Since the war people are becoming better educated in furniture values and furniture styles. The salaried man is buying period furniture on a larger scale than ever before, and this company desires to give him a chance to purchase the kind of furniture he desires on a convenient credit basis."

In addition to carrying an unusually large stock of Chippendale, Louis XVI., Italian Renaissance and other periods the company has a stock of Colonial furniture.

EXPERT PROVIDED.

To asure its customers the best furniture for their particular homes the company has arranged for an interior decorator to make an inspection of their buyers' needs without cost to the customer.

Complete rooms will be laid out in apartment style so a prospective buyer can obtain an idea of how his own home would look with certain furnishings.

There is also a gift shop specializing in furniture gifts and furnishings especially desirable for brides and newly married couples.

SOUTH BOSTON SEEKS BAN ON AUTO PARK

South Boston residents are denouncing the arrangement which has transformed Dorchester avenue, between Summer street, and Dorchester bridge, into an automobile parking space.

Last Winter the broad sidewalk which ran along Fort Hill Channel in the section was torn away to enable the city to cope more easily with conditions caused by heavy snowfall. Instead of restoring that sidewalk, the section was utilized as a parking place, it is charged.

Automobiles now line the place where, formerly, mothers could stroll with their babies, or pedestrians could walk on their way to work from South Boston. A charge of twenty-five cents will permit an automobile owner to leave his car there all day.

On the other side of the street, where the South Station freight houses stand, trucks are continually taking on or discharging loads. Thus pedestrians are forced into the road, where the heavy traffic causes serious danger. Frequent accidents result, it is said

TRAVEL BRIEFS

NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

A hearing by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the matter of the continuation of the surcharge for Pullman accommodations is being held at Portland, Me. Many passenger traffic representatives of eastern and southern railroads are in attendance. Among the prominent officials present are C. B. Ryan, passenger traffic manager, and C. H. Gattes, assistant general passenger agent of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, with headquarters at Norfolk, Va., who left Boston Sunday evening, accompanied by John A. Blaser, New England passenger agent of the Seaboard.

ADMIRAL LINE AGENT HERE.

T. J. Kehoe, general agent of the Admiral Oriental Line, from Seattle to the Orient, is spending a few days in Boston in the interest of his line. Mr. Kehoe's headquarters are in New York.

HELD ANNUAL GET-TOGETHER

Members of the North Western-Union Pacific Yellowstone Park Association from all over New England were in Boston Saturday for the annual get-together of the association. This organization is composed of New England passenger agents who formed part of the large delegation from eastern States which several years ago toured Yellowstone National Park and other points of interest in the West as guests of the Chicago & North Western and Union Pacific systems. About twenty-five members were present and enjoyed a smoker during the afternoon, followed by dinner in the evening.

LAUNCHED NEW STEAMER.

The Ocean Steamship Company of Savannah, for which G. Herman Wright of this city is New England passenger agent, launched the new steamer, "City of Chattanooga" at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, on Saturday. Miss Dorothy Patten was the sponsor. The new vessel will be operated in the New York to Savannah service.

MOURN AGENT'S LOSS.

Mr. Cheng Fong, the New England Chinese passenger agent of the Great Northern Railway, is receiving the condolences of the entire railroad fraternity on the loss of his daughter, a charming fifteen-year-old High School student, who died very suddenly during the past week.

WILLARD'S NEW APPOINTMENT

Howard S. Willard has been appointed traveling passenger agent in New England for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. He will be attached to the office of Ira F. Schwegel, eastern passenger agent at New York. Mr. Willard, who was formerly connected with the local Consolidated Ticket Office on Franklin street, and later with the New Orleans office of the Louisville & Nashville, has a host of friends who will be glad to hear of his advancement.

STOCKS BACK FROM CHICAGO.

Alex Stocks, general agent of the Burlington Route, has returned from Chicago where the annual "family gathering" of C. B. & Q., representatives was held during the week.

NEW 70-HOUR TRAIN

According to information issued by local office of C. E. Foster, general agent, passenger department, of the Northern Pacific Railway, the North Coast Limited will be operated on a 70-hour schedule between Chicago, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland, effective July 29. Westbound the train will leave Chicago at 10:35 a. m., and arrive at Seattle, Tacoma and Portland at 8.35 a. m. Eastbound, departure will be made from the Tacoma at 9.20 a. m., and from Seattle and Portland at 9.30 a. m., arriving in Chicago at 9.30 a. m., of the third day.

This service with the Pacific express leaving Chicago at 6:30 p. m. on C. B. & Q. No. 47 and Northern Pacific No. 3 from St. Paul at 9.35 a. m. provides double daily Pullman service from Chicago to Yellowstone Park, Butte, Missoula, Spokane and North Pacific Coast points.

The "Yellowstone Park Comet," operated daily during July and August betwen St. Paul and Gardiner Gateway, will leave St. Paul at 11 p. m. carrying the through Pullman sleepers to Gardiner and Cody leaving Chicago at 10.35 a. m.

11,400 VISIT GRAND CANYON

For May and June this year the travel was more than double that of 1921 and seven times as great as five years ago. July thus far is making an equally good showing. An average of 125 autos visited the Grand Canyon daily during May and June. That average is likely to be increased for the three months following.

This breaks all records of canyon travel since the Panama exposition, and indicates the fast growing popularity of this unique national park. A greater number than ever are remaining over two or three days. Steps are being taken to add to the hotel accommodations, drives and trail facilities.

Roxbury Post Outing

Graft on the New Haven

No One Seems Interested, So Why Should the Boston American Bother About It?

It was stated in these columns Saturday that the Boston American had come into possession of information concerning graft on the New Haven railroad that was responsible for the disgraceful accommodations afforded passengers forced by reason of railroad monopoly to use that line.

It was further stated that this information was available to persons charged with the duty of protecting the public and willing and competent to see that the public was protected.

No one has come forward.

However the Boston American is not discouraged.

On behalf of its readers this newspaper will pursue the investigation. We hope, shortly to be able to inform our readers of interesting results.

Mr. Mellon in Europe

Yes, Mr. Lasker's Digestion Is Good

Copyright, 1923, by Star Company

Mr. Mellon, the Secretary of the Treasury, will talk to some of the important people in Europe. They will see an American citizen that understands American business, big and little, and one that isn't doubtful about America's ability to take care of herself.

Mr. Mellon will learn that France has decided to multiply her ship subsidy by three to encourage French shipping.

He will be able to tell the President and Congress that for the moment, national shipping is a question of the survival of the fittest. All the ships will cost money. The question is who can stand it the longest?

Uncle Sam ought to be able to stand it about as long as anybody. Thanks to Lasker's advertising campaign, the Leviathan went out with five hundred thousand dollars for the trip, and about ten million dollars' worth of advertising.

Before he sailed, Lasker offered to bet seven thousand to five thousand dollars—on condition that the winner would give the money to charity—that President Harding will be re-elected.

Lasker had just had his dinner, and, in obedience to advice "to eat lightly before sailing," had eaten only the following: Caviar, green turtle soup, filet of English sole, white wine sauce (imitation wine), with chopped up lobster on top of it, rack of lamb with peas, potatoes and cauliflower, Supreme of chicken with half an inch of pate de foie gras on top of it, and a rich white sauce on top of that, salad, ice cream with fruit in it and whipped cream on top of it, fruit, cakes and coffee. Surely, Lasker will live to be a hundred, for that's what you might call a constitution. But whether he will win his charity bets on Mr. Harding depends a good deal on the price of wheat, good or bad times, Henry Ford, McAdoo and other things.

Nice Stock to Own

"Going and Coming"—for the People

Copyright, 1923, by Star Company

Some railroad stocks are not so bad. The Michigan Central, for instance, in its latest report shows a profit of over twelve millions, more than $68 a share, a pleasant little increase from $41.23 the year previous.

When railroads DON'T pay, the public is compelled to stand higher rates and MAKE them pay. But when a railroad earns $68 on a share there is no talk about the public getting cheaper transportation over THAT particular road.

If the government owned and operated the railroads, as it SHOULD do, and as eventually it WILL do, the profitable roads would take care of the unprofitable ones, as the profitable postoffices in the great cities take care of the unprofitable rural free delivery.

That isn't anarchy, please remember, for there is no suggestion of taking anybody's railroad without paying for it. When railroads need land they take it, pay for it at a fair price. Why shouldn't the people, if they need railroads, take them and pay for them at a fair price?

Christianity Could Aid China

The U. S. A. Also

Copyright, 1923, by Star Company

Baptist clergymen, in convention, announce that Christianity is the ONLY hope of China. They think things would be all right if the Chinese were good Christians.

That is true, undoubtedly. French, English, Germans and Americans also would be very much improved if they were TRUE Christians. If they were they couldn't go to war, for one thing, and, for another, they couldn't cheat each other or oppress the poor.

To make Christians of the hundreds of millions of Chinese would probably take a long time. Meanwhile, if they should become really good Confucians that probably would help.

Confucius didn't say, "Do unto others what you would have them do unto you." But he DID say, five hundred years before Christ was born, "Do not do unto others what you would not have them do unto you."

That is pretty good negative advice—the next best thing to Christianity.

HORSE-HAIR EGRETS ARE NEW VOGUE

PARIS, July 30.—When some hundreds of American women tourists step from the gangplank in Manhattan in August and September wearing what looks like some billion dollars' worth of egrets, let neither the United States Customs nor the Society for the Preservation of Birds (or whatever it is called) get excited.

Frantic protests from these ladies cannot prevent Universal Service from giving away the great secret: They're not egrets, they are horse hair, and they come from that part of the equine anatomy customarily utilized to whisk the flies with.

Future Commissions

Editor Boston American:

Perhaps some one can tell me what good it does to pay out public funds for coal commissions that are supposed to look into the coal situation and suggest some means of preventing further suffering on the part of the public. As I remember it, the Governor appointed a commission last year, after the coal crisis had passed, and I understand that this step was taken to avert a further shortage this Winter.

Now comes the news that we will have another famine. In other words, every cent spent to send this coal commission around the country, let them live in the best of hotels and travel in the best manner has been wasted. Let us hope that someone will do something now to get some coal and not try to keep us warm next Winter on statistics. WALTER BURNS.

Passing on Wrong Side

Editor Boston American:

After reading the "Road Hog" letter, I say the writer is right. Being a professional chauffeur for many years, I would like to state what I find to be the cause of so many accidents. If every one should be investigated, it would be found that most accidents were caused by the driver cutting in from the right side instead of left to pass another auto. There is a law to prevent this, I think, but it is never enforced. E. M.

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls. No Names Are Published.

Needs Companion

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there amongst your readers any person, elderly or otherwise, who is in need of a good home? I have an aunt who is an invalid, in bed ten years, with articular rheumatism, and she will have to end her days in an institution unless she can get a companion, as she is all alone in the world. She is forty years old and of a very cheery and lovable disposition. She could not pay high wages, but whoever goes to live with her will find a comfortable home and not much work to do, as a district nurse attends her daily. She dreads to leave her dear old home and cries so pitifully when it is suggested. Just now an old lady is with her, but she must soon leave to care for an ailing relative. My aunt lives in Providence. MISS M. B. E.

T. B. Patient In Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I would appreciate it if someone would send me some pajamas, socks or a sweater. I am two years in a sanitarium with tuberculosis and have no money to buy things with. A. H.

Board for Child

Editor Helping Hand:

Do you know of some person who would take a child to board at a reasonable rate for the month of August? If so, will you kindly let me know, and I will send some child for a week, and another for each of the other three weeks, so that four children may have a vacation. Would consider only children that would otherwise have to remain in the city, and creed and color is of no interest to me. H. E. S.

This should afford a vacation not only to some worthy children, but incidentally to the mothers who have to care for them. I think we can find both a boarding place and worthy children, so your very generous offer will be held for replies.

Paid Back Rent

Editor Helping Hand:

I have written a letter of thanks to "A Lawrence Sport," and if you will forward it I will be greatly obliged to you. I am feeling very much better, but, as you may have discovered in my writing, I need new glasses, which I think I will be able to get now. The doctor says I will not be able to do any work for a long time, as my eyes are nearly gone. I thank you very much for what you have done. I have paid my back rent and bought some medicine.

MRS. M. H.

Unfortunately, the Lawrence Sport did not send his address, so cannot forward your letter of thanks, but if he reads this it will let him know how grateful you are.

Widow's Offering

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me the address of some mother who has children, as I have some clothes to fit a boy of four and some clothes which could be made over for the children. I also have a stroller which someone could have. As I am a young widow myself, I can't give very much, but I know they will help someone. MRS. A. F. H.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. J. L., who will appreciate the clothing, and your kind offer of a stroller will be held for replies.

Two Suits to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a black broadcloth suit, and a blue linen suit, size 28, which I shall be glad to send to those in need. I have also several magazines, some of them Catholic readingmatter, which I shall be glad to send. A. D. B.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. D. J., a poor mother in need of clothing, and the magazines will be held for replies.

Grateful

Editor Helping Hand:

Many thanks for what you have done for me so far. I've received quite a few packages from different parties, which certainly did help. I want to say that I will be forever grateful to you for your kindness. "Thank you" is very small pay for the wonderful work you are doing.

MRS. W. A. C.

Glad you are getting help, and we add our thanks to the kind readers who are making it possible.

Fireman Wants Dog

Editor Helping Hand:

I am writing to know if you would consider an application for a dog of any kind. I am a member of the Boston Fire Department, and my wife and son had a little puppy, which died. They were much attached to it, and my little fellow asks me why I cannot get him a doggie. If you know of one, I can give it a good home and the best of attention from my wife and little son. F. J. M.

Others Supplied

The editor wishes to express his sincere thanks to the following people for their generous offers of assistance. They have been sent the addresses of those they wish to aid:

METAL MIKE COULD HARDLY MANAGE WORSE

By Herbert Kaufman

LAWRENCE SPEERY, inventor of stabilizers for aeroplanes and ocean liners, watches the freighter, Harry Luckenback, from San Francisco via the Panama Canal, arrive safely in New York barbor—steered all the way by a Groscope pilot, Speery's latest bit of wizardry.

Judging by foreign confusions, quite a few countries would probably manage just as well if they placed ships of State in charge of like helmsmen.

"Metal Mike," the automaton, didn't wreck his vessel—more than may be said for several Continental statesmen.

George W. Reynolds, a Chicago banker, joins the isolation chorus on his return from Europe, and tells America to keep its money at home, where every cent is pressingly needed. In his opinion, Germany and Russia will eventually combine forces and make war on France.

London rumors, on the other hand, lead us to believe that the imperial mosaic which Bismarck designed is on the verge of breakup. In which case, Poincare would be forced to deal with a dozen separate governments instead of one.

When a million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars' worth of marks depreciate to $7.50, anything is likely to happen.

Berlin now catches the Breslau-Frankfort fever. Housewives become sans-culotte and drag a stallkeeper by the heels up and down the aisles of the city's principal market, as potatoes rise 50 per cent. over night.

Woodrow Wilson Joins the Jeremiahs

If Woodrow Wilson had written his article for the Atlantic Monthly today instead of five or six weeks ago, he'd express even greater alarm at universal outlooks.

Pessimism drips from the ex-President's pen.

He observes desperation and discontent seizing peoples everywhere. Capitalism is advised to adjust policies to circumstances before meretricious political experiments, engineered by hotheads and harebrains, further endanger democracy.

Another Jeremiah, Johnson of Minnesota, issues the statement that masses are no longer satisfied to leave 65 per cent. of our country's wealth in the hands of 2 per cent. of the population.

Subsidies and guarantees for farmers, soldier bonus, and heavier taxes on inherited wealth and corporation earnings are among the ingredients of remedies he plans to offer.

Crutches Won't Cure Present Troubles

Of course, the greater part of America's wealth is controlled by a minority. Unless enterprise has thoroughfare and due rewards for industry and forethought, civilization would promptly collapse.

Provided common rights are safeguarded, shrewd, determined men should continue to have unrestricted chances to better their fortunes.

Direction of affairs may not be entrusted to haphazard, reckless intelligence.

Affluence, of itself, is not an indictment of character—or of patriotism.

The biggest income taxpayers in the United States hadn't a penny or an influential friend to start with—nor an opportunity which wasn't available to every contemporary.

Legislation can't and never shall furnish substitutes for thrift and self-reliance.

There are critical phases which necessitate social and economic adjustments, even temporary paternalism, but relief measures are not specifics. Prosperity and progress can't be maintained on crutches.

Another Living Cost Elevator

School physiologies used to relate how physicians studied the processes of digestion by looking through a flap in the stomach of a man who had been operated on for intestinal disorders.

The projected change in working schedules of the steel industry similarly reveals some of the machinery that hoists living costs.

Sixty thousand extra helpers and a forty-five-million-dollar annual payroll increase epitomize the expense of the eight-hour-day.

Multiply this amount by twenty years and it represents, plus accrued interest, the original capitalization of Chairman Gary's company—which will pay half of it and then proceed to "pass the buck."

Consequently rents, automobiles, agricultural implements, passenger and freight tariff are due for upward revision.

By the time successive intermediate profits and overhead charges are added to raw product advances, forty-five million shall have grown to ninety.

It's well to know these little things.

Our next exhibit is the old hickory powder transaction. Among other army ventures, Washington permitted the purchase of a 5,000-acre tract and erected 1,700 various factories, administration offices and dwelling on the premises.

We spent a hundred million dollars on the plant, and subsequently sold the outfit for three million five hundred thousand. Attorney-General Daugherty secured indictments against parties responsible for the deal and now sues to have the questionable sale set aside.

Include Hog Island wastes, Muscle Shoals extravagances, aeroplane and emergency fleet bungles, and quartermaster miscalculations totaling several billions—and you'll understand why tax-shortened greenbacks are only reaching half the distance they went in 1913.

Incapable Congresses are responsible for more existing perplexities than profiteering capitalists. It's well to understand that also.

Birds in Borrowed Plumage

Disappointed applicants are hereby informed that they can go to Paris and call themselves what they please. Since aristocracy isn't officially recognized there, citizens may, as minded, confers orders of nobility upon themselves.

Scores of putative French dukes and counts are actually descendants of tradesmen, butlers, valets and other servants, playing peacock with feathers plucked from families wiped out by the guillotine.

The former Mrs. Spreckels, once wife of a California sugar king, continues on her royal course and takes a Turkish prince for a second husband. That doesn't necessarily mean anything, either. Such distinctions signify no more through the Far East than in Russia, where Catherine decreed that lines of merchants enjoying an unblemished reputation for a hundred years, were automatically admissible to baronage. Barnum is still right.
